Block Attempt to Dump Bad Potatoes Here

CARLING PLANE MISSING

Today

Progress and Sacrifice.
Persistent Levine.
Block Buys the Bears.
The Hoptoad's Eye.
—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.)

THERE IS deep anxiety concerning the fate of Payne, Bertaud and Hill, who began on Tuesday a flight to Rome. Hope has not been abandoned, however, and, whatever may happen, the country will be proud of the fact that it possesses so many men of daring, willing to risk life in a good cause.

Detroit's around the world fliers, Brock and Schlee, landed at Rangoon, Burmah, yesterday afternoon, flying from Calcutta, India, part of the way through a dangerous monsoon. Kipling would write a poem about that, and a good one, if he were thirty years younger, and the fliers were British.

Levine, again compelled to postpone his flight westward because of bad weather, is determined to make the flight. Advice cannot move him. On the train from London to Plymouth last Wednesday this writer advised Levine, then taking his wife to the steamship Isle De France, to give up the dangerous westward flight and turn his money and energy toward airplane development. Having bought the rights to a small low priced airplane manufactured in France, and made plans for a big "weather proof" air machine, Levine might do something more useful than risk his life on a return trip, especially after crossing the ocean once. But he is determined to make the flight, apparently because he said he would do so.

The British were amazed when Levine, who is not a pilot, suddenly landed at Croyden from Paris, nearly killing himself as he came down. Lord Beaverbrook, who owns the London Express, told this writer in London last week that Levine, leaving Paris alone and landing in England without breaking his neck, had, in the opinion of British fliers, accomplished a most extraordinary feat of daring.

Paul Block, who owns newspapers in many cities, including Pittsburgh, Toledo and Newark, has bought for $500,000 Newark's baseball club, called "The Bears." Under Block's ownership those "Bears" will be bears, Block being a conspicuous member of the "Bear" family. Paul Block's theory is that baseball club profits are really a by-product of the newspaper business, and would drop if the newspapers dropped baseball. "There fore," says practical Mr. Block, "since newspaper owners must create baseball profits, they should also be baseball club owners."

Sir Oliver Lodge made solemn members of the British Scientific Association "gasp" by describing

Hope for Old Glory Crew Wanes

33 HOURS SINCE S O S; LINERS REPORT ROUGH SEA; GIVE UP SEARCH

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Hope for the survival of the intrepid crew of the monoplane Old Glory sank today.

The time set for the plane to span the ocean on her way from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome passed with no news of her whereabouts or the fate of Pilots Lloyd Bertaud and James D Hill, and their passenger, Philip A. Payne, managing editor of the New York Daily Mirror.

Radio station BAS, at Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, broadcast a message early today stating that the steamships Transylvania and Carmania had given up the search for the missing monoplane Old Glory.

Old Glory should have arrived over Bordeaux, France, before Wednesday midnight, Eastern standard time, figuring from the fact that she was sighted 350 miles east of St. John's, Newfoundland, at 11:57 o'clock, E. S. T., Tuesday night and that she had been making about

13 CHILDREN RESCUED IN CAMBRIDGE BLAZE

Thirteen children were carried to and four members of another family the street in their night clothing trapped in their apartment were rescued after smashing in a locked door by Patrolmen J. F. Linehan and Michael J. Lynch during a fire early today in the four-tenement house at 8 Jefferson street, East Cambridge. Sparks from the blaze, which was in the heart of the tenement district, set fire to two other structures.

Patrolman Linehan of the East Cambridge station discovered the fire and gave the alarm. Patrolman Lynch came along and the two rushed through the house arousing the occupants and carrying the children to the street. As they were doing so they were attracted by cries from the family of Samuel Maloro, trapped on the third floor and unable to find the key to the door. The officers smashed in the

CANADIAN FLIERS AND CARLING PLANE LONG OVERDUE IN ENGLAND

By International News Service

Intense anxiety was aroused this afternoon over the probable fate of the Canadian transatlantic plane, Sir John Carling, which hopped off at Harbor Grace, N. F., at 8 o'clock yesterday morning (Newfoundland time), for Croydon Airdrome, near London.

Up to 1.30 o'clock, Boston daylight saving time, this afternoon, the Carling had not been sighted off the Irish coast, and at that hour the plan ewas six and one-half hours overdue, as she had been expected off Ireland at 7 a. m., Boston time.

It was estimated by Croydon Airdrome officials, according to cablegrams from London, that the Carling carried enough fuel to last until 3:30 p. m. Boston time.

The plane carried no radio and no ships reported sighting her though several liners were under the aerial path the Carling was expected to follow.

Croydon Airdrome, England, Sept. 8 (I.N.S.).—With the Old Glory disaster fresh in mind, anxiety began to arise this afternoon, as the hours dipped by and no word was received regarding the Sir John Carling.

At 5 o'clock (12 Boston time) the plane was five hours overdue off the Irish coast.

Officials said that no serious fears should yet be entertained as but

47 CARS OF POTATOES SEIZED HERE AS ROTTEN

An apparent attempt to flood Boston with diseased and rotten potatoes from Maine was frustrated by city health authorities today when 47 carloads of potatoes were seized on sidings in the Boston & Maine Railroad yards.

These cars contained 1,410,000 pounds of potatoes, and as far as the inspection has gone from 60 to 85 per cent of the potatoes are afflicted with tuber rot, hollow heart or have been affected by the early or late blight, the authorities claim.

Already 30,000 pounds of potatoes have been condemned and will be destroyed.

Following the discovery of the wholesale attempt to flood the Bos-

Glory Theirs, But What Their Fate? What Went Wrong There In a Wide Expanse of a Watery Waste?

Dorothy Britton Ray Morehouse

"I MIGHT HAVE SAVED HER"

Ray Morehouse, the radio engineer who installed and tested the radio equipment on Old Glory, was on the plane ready to fly to Rome when Phil Payne ordered him off and went in his stead.

SWEEPS SEA IN VAIN FOR A TRACE

Captain David Bone of the liner Transylvania, first to heed Old Glory's S O S when something went wrong. He searched in vain. Did the radio, the motor or something else fail?

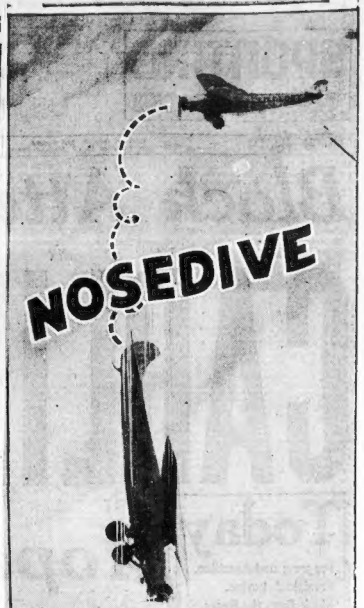
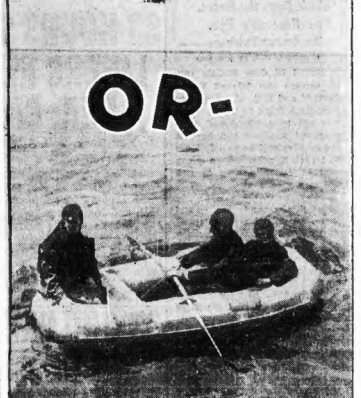
OR, BY CHANCE, DID THESE FAIL, TOO?

While Old Glory wallowed in the trough of the wave was there chance for use of a flare gun, pistol rocket or other "safety device" and the call for help? No signal light came from the black and white sea.





OR, DO THESE TELL THE FATEFUL TALE?

A tail spin—which means doom out there—and then three men battling for life in a frail rubber raft—is that the story of Old Glory; a new chapter to the annals of men who go up over the sea in ships that do not come down? Who may tell?

HOPES FOR OLD GLORY WANE 33 HOURS AFTER SOS CALL

180 miles an hour. From St. John's to Bordeaux it is approximately 2,500 miles.

Nearly thirty-three hours had elapsed at noon today since the liners ploughing their regular transatlantic lanes in the darkness of the early hours of Wednesday picked up the despairing distress call:

"WRHF—S O S. Five hours out of Newfoundland, east."

"WRHF" was the plane's radio call.

Search of the tumbling wastes of the Atlantic 500 miles off the Newfoundland coast had brought no sign, either of the plane or of the little rubber boat with which the fliers were equipped against just such an emergency as seems to have befallen.

LINERS QUIT

Captain David W. Bone of the Cunard-Anchor liner Transylvania, the vessel nearest the spot, who raced his ship more than 90 miles to the estimated last position of the plane, reported regretfully last night:

"Have searched area without result. Feel little hope of survival in view of rough sea at time of casualty." He was proceeding on his voyage, he added.

Captain F. G. Brown of the Carmania reported strong rain squalls and rough breaking seas, and, like Captain Bone, considered there was "little chance of survival of collapsible boat under present conditions."

What hope remains for the pilots and passenger of Old Glory centers in the precautions taken before the start against the contingency of a forced landing at sea. The fact that an S O S message by radio was sent indicates that the trouble, whatever nature, was discovered by the aviators while still in flight, as the trailing aerial wire used would fail to function when submerged.

RUBBER BOAT

Like Commander Byrd's plane, the America, which landed in the Channel, off Ver-Sur-Mer, France, the Old Glory was equipped with a rubber boat, capable of inflation within a short time. It will be recalled that Commander Byrd and his companions made their way to shore on this craft, but in their case the landing was made near the beach.

Anthony H. G. Fokker, designer and builder of the Old Glory, has stated that if the engine stopped while the plane was flying at any considerable altitude, the main gasoline tank could be emptied by means of a dump valve provided for that purpose.

The buoyancy of the tank, in case this was done, would keep the machine afloat for some time, this being dependent upon the state of the water, as waves will break up a plane in a very short time.

MOTOR TROUBLE

Mr. Fokker is of the opinion that motor trouble prompted the S O S and that, judging from the fact that a radio message was sent, the fliers must have had time to dump their gasoline. The motor was a Bristol-Jupiter or approximately 450 horsepower.

In addition to the rubber boat, the fliers were equipped with signal rockets and flares. They also had a Scarley distress kite.

Aviators say that if they had an opportunity to launch the kite after landing in the water, ships nearby should have no difficulty in sighting them during the daylight hours.

The steamer Newfoundland, which

Old Glory Had Gas Enough to Stay in Air 50 Hours

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The gasoline supply of the monoplane Old Glory as estimated was sufficient to permit her to remain in the air until 8:23 (Eastern standard time) tonight.

The plane carried 1,270 gallons of gasoline, which Hertaud and Hill estimated would keep them aloft for 56 hours and give them a cruising range of 5,000 miles.

The plane left Old Orchard, Me., at 12:23 P. M. (Eastern stand time) Tuesday.

weather might have cut down the plane's speed.

A large crowd had gathered to welcome the plane here.

LONDON FEARFUL.

London, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The late afternoon editions of the London newspapers began to reflect considerable anxiety for the safety of the Sir John Carling on its flight from London, Ont., to London, Eng., with Captain Terry Tully as pilot and Lieutenant James Medcalf as navigator.

The anxiety was intensified because the lack of news from the Carling came so close upon the heels of the mysterious disappearance of Old Glory. Accounts of the futile search for Old Glory were still being carried under prominent headlines on front pages of London papers.

At the Croydon airdrome the Carling was awaited by a crowd eager tobe the first to greet the transatlantic airmen.

HAD PLENTY O FFUEL.

There was a certain amount of uneasiness also among officials, although the opinion was ventured by one that as the plane had plenty of fuel to keep in the air for hours more the pilot might have lost his bearings and eventually would turn up all right.

Ontario-Londoners today, although disquieted by the non-appearance of the monoplane Sir John Carling on schedule at London, England, were hopeful that the plane was merely suffering adverse winds and would eventually arrive in safety.

Mrs. Terrence Tully, wife of the pilot, would not believe her husband and Lieutenant James Medcalf, his navigator, had met with any grave mishap, and said she was confident the Sir John Carling would be heard from soon.

HEAVY MIST OFF ERIN.

Dublin, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—It was stated at the Civic Guard headquarters here this afternoon that they were without news from any station concerning the Sir John Carling.

Belfast, Ireland, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Reports from Civic Guard stations along the Galway shore this afternoon stated that they had failed to sight the Sir John Carling. Visibility was bad, a strong southwesterly gale was blowing and a heavy mist was hanging over the coast.

The first floor was occupied by Anthony Cassaw and his family, the second by Joseph Longo, and the fourth by Frank Ciano, owner of the building, and his family. All escaped without injury. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Benton House Suffers $20,000 Loss From Fire

The big brick mansion of the late Colonel Everett C. Benton in Oakley road, Belmont, a structure 97 years old and filled with valuable antiques, was damaged to an extent estimated at $20,000 today by a two-alarm fire which forced Belmont firemen to summon aid from Watertown and Arlington.

Four persons, including the wife and eleven-year-old daughter of the caretaker, fled from the flames after being awakened by hot-air explosions.

The mansion is one of the landmarks of the town. Colonel Benton, who died in 1924, was long a prominent figure in Republican party affairs and in the insurance business in Boston. His son and executor of his estate, Jay R. Benton, is an ex-attorney-general.

An investigation of the fire was ordered by Fire Chief Hill of Belmont. The blaze apparently started in a pile of furniture belonging to the caretaker, William Grant, and stored in the centre of the big east parlor, according to Hill.

Mrs. William Grant, her daughter, Lillian; her mother, Mrs. Sprague, and her brother, Herbert Sprague, were the four driven out. Grant was away at the time.

JAPANESE IN MUKDEN FEAR DEMONSTRATIONS

Tokyo, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Anti-Japanese demonstrations are continuing in Mukden, Manchuria, official reports say, and other similar manifestations are expected. The Japanese residents are uneasy, and it has been thought necessary to provide guards for their children on the way to and from school.

The Japanese minister to China, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, protested to Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian military dictator, requesting him to take steps to end the disturbances. The Government is awaiting a reply which it expects will be satisfactory.

"Still Chance for Old Glory," Says Com. Byrd

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Commander Richard E. Byrd, in Rochester today, told the Associated Press that, in his opinion, "there is still a chance of getting Old Glory if she is down on the ocean."

The transatlantic and North Pole flier added, however, that the landing of the plane in the water, especially if it was forced down before dawn, was fraught with difficulties.

2 HURT, 1 DYING IN TAXI CRASH

A Pittsburgh man was probably fatally injured and a driver was hurt when two taxicabs crashed at Beach street and Harriet, avenue today.

The collision was of such force that one of the taxis was thrown across the sidewalk on which stood Adolph J. Eggenberger of Pittsburgh, aged 32, and his son, Walter, aged 10. They had arrived in Boston only a short time before and were on a sight-seeing tour. The cab pinned the older man against the side of a building. The younger man leaped to safety.

Eggenberger suffered a deep cut in the back of his head, another in the chin and concussion of the brain. Ramsay Singer of No. 99 Waltham street, South End, driver of one of the cabs was cut and bruised.

HUNT SLASHER IN BOSTON

Search for Carmina Giovenetti, Middleboro widower, who is alleged to have slashed 13-year-old Eleanor Beals and her grandmother, Mrs. Carrie Pasquerello of Middleboro, today turned to Boston, where Giovenetti formerly lived.

The man, said by the police to have been berserk with jealous fury because his attentions were spurned by the Beals girl's mother, Mrs. Agnes Beals, disappeared immediately after he is alleged to have wielded his knife.

State police are also watching Providence, where the man resided at one time, while in Boston Inspector Joseph Cavignaro is keeping an eye on the North End, assisting State detectives in their search.

Meanwhile the young victim is in a critical condition at Middleboro Hospital, while the older woman, who was slashed once across the body, is expected to recover.

The Beals revealed a strange story of how for months they have been terrorized by Giovenetti. The Beals home in Middleboro is being guarded by State and town police in the belief that the stabber may return there to wreak vengeance on the family.

WOMAN DERIDES 'RIVAL' IN BITTER LOVE BATTLE

MONEY PASSED IN BACK BAY APARTMENT

Payments of $5,000 to coast guard officers by rum-runners as a blanket price to allow a rum ship to discharge its cargo of liquor were revealed, Federal officials assert, in the investigation which ended in the indictment of five former and present superior officers of the Coast Guard and six alleged rum runners.

These Federal officials charge that the assignment of one of the indicted coast guard officers, Carl O. Halwartz, as executvie officer at the East Boston base simplified the collusion of the rum-runners and the coast guardsmen.

Halwartz, it was stated, was able to assign whatever patrol boat he wished to "picket" a rum runner that appeared on the row.

If arrangement had been made by the operators ashore to give a particular schooner protection, the 75-foot patrol boat would wink at the speed boats that moored beside the "mother" ship and allow them to load to capacity with cases of liquor.

DIVORCEE LOSES AFTER FURIOUS COURT SCENE

Shaking her finger almost under the nose of Mrs. Annie Hozid and repeatedly calling her a "liar" and a woman she would "get," Mrs. Lucy Allen of the West End almost wrecked her suit against Mrs. Hozid for alleged alienation of affections today in Superior Court.

The case was on the judicial boulders officially when the jury, remaining out only eighteen minutes, returned a verdict for Mrs. Hozid.

While Judge Greenhalge slapped angrily and loudly on the bench and the jurors sat with astonishment on their faces, Mrs. Allen, who claims Mrs. Hozid, her former landlady, stole the love of Ivory L. Allen, shrieked in a tirade.

She was supposed to be cross-examining Mrs. Hozid while acting as her own lawyer, but from the moment Mrs. Allen rose for the supposed cross-examination until finally the Judge's pounding prevailed, she stood almost nose to nose with her former landlady and shouted ac-

A NEWSPAPER FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY
BOSTON, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1927

WOMAN, 101, TO FLY FROM HUB TO MAINE

Mrs. Almatia Bennett, Chicopee's "flying grandma" who is 101 years old today, will attend a birthday party at Hotel Statler tonight and tomorrow will fly in an airplane from Boston to Old Orchard, Me.

Three governors and other distinguished citizens are invited to tonight's festivities when "Grandma" Bennett will light the 101 candles on a birthday cake. Governor Fuller, Governor Brewster of Maine and Governor Spaulding of New Hampshire are invited to the festivities.

The host at the party will be Robert P. Hazzard, Maine shoe manufacturer. Sharing in the honors will be 89-year-old Charles W. Bradley of Rochester, N. Y., who will make the flight from the Boston airport with "Grandma" Bennett tomorrow.

The pilot of the plane will be Captain Harry M. Jones of Portland. The flight will be Mrs. Bennett's third.

WIFE SICK IN HOSPITAL; HUSBAND KILLED BY GAS

HUB WRECKERS WALK OUT ON 20 JOBS

More than a week of endeavor to patch up differences failed today when 350 building wreckers employed on 20 jobs in Greater Boston walked out on strike.

The wreckers, in a new agreement which the Master Building Wreckers have refused to sign, demand increased wages and a reduction in the working week from 54 to 45 hours.

They ask an increase from 75 cents to $1 an hour and the laborers want a boost from the present 60 cents to 85 cents.

According to Thomas Devine, secretary of the union, the employers refused to sign any new agreement for at least two years.

Through the intervention and efforts of Miss Anna Weinstock of the United States Labor Board, the strike originally set for Sept. 1 was deferred at that time and in the interval she attempted to bring a compromise through arbitration.

WORLD FLIERS OFF TO SIAM

Rangoon, Burma, Sept. 8 (I.N.S.).—The Pride of Detroit, bearing Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock on a record-breaking airplane flight around the world, hopped off at 6:19 o'clock this morning for Bangkok, Siam.

Because of the comparatively short distance to Bankok, 375 miles, Schlee and Brock said before leaving here that they might continue straight on to Hanoi, French Indo-China, if weather conditions were such they could safely fly on without making the expected stop. Hanoi is 625 miles from Bangkok.

Courtney Postpones Flight From Spain

Coruana, Spain, Sept. 8 (I.N.S.).—Captain Frank T. Courtney, British airman, today postponed his hop-off for the Azores as the result of unfavorable weather forecasts.

Irish Air Force Head to Hop With MacIntosh

Dublin, Sept. 8 (I.N.S.).—Commandant Fitzmaurice, commander of the Irish Free State Air Force, has been chosen to accompany Captain R. H. MacIntosh on his proposed flight to Philadelphia in the monoplane "Princess Xenia," it was announced today.

Captain MacIntosh is awaiting favorable weather, which he does not expect for forty-eight hours.

Royal Windsor Hop Set for Tomorrow

LEVINE PLANS HOP SATURDAY

Croyden, Eng., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Charles A. Levine, owner of the transatlantic airplane Columbia, arrived at the airdrome here today and joined the crowd, to await the arrival of the airplane Sir John Carling.

Levine told the Associated Press he had expected to meet the Carling's aviators and voiced the fear that something untoward had happened.

Regarding his own projected flight from England to America, Levine said he hoped to hop off on Saturday morning.

"Doc" Kinkade, the airplane motor expert who has been assisting Levine, has given up, asserting the weather is too bad for a flight. He is sailing for New York on the President Roosevelt tomorrow.

Mayor Walker in Rome

Rome, Italy, Sept. 8 (A.P.)—Mayor Walker of New York, with Mrs. Walker and their entourage, arrived in Rome today from Venice.

of the sea," the responsibility of the coast guard ended when the speed boat got her load aboard and headed to the isolated beach from where she started.

It was stated that in many instances the payment of money was made at a Back Bay apartment of one of the rum-runners. It was agreed, it was claimed, that there was to be a "split" with the superior making arrangements for the picket duty and the commander of the little patrol boat assigned to the schooner "whose loads had been paid for."

Though the crew of these patrol boats number from six to eight men, it was rarely that the commanding officer of the picket boat found it necessary to split his graft with all members of his crew, the Federal officials say.

Watches were arranged so that one member of the crew and the commanding officer would be on duty at night when the discharging of the liquor took place. The other four or six members of the crew safely yvartered in their bunks, knew nothing of what was going on during the night and in consequence were not in a position to make any demands on their superior officers.

CARDINAL WINS IN CAMP BAN

Cardinal O'Connell and Summer residents of Eastern Point, Gloucester, today won the first step in their effort to prevent the erection of camps in that vicinity.

By an agreement reached out of court, Herbert E. and Arthur W. Smith of Gloucester promised to proceed no further with their camp operations until the entire matter is threshed out in Superior Court, where the plaintiffs have filed a bill of equity.

Cardinal O'Connell is an interested party because of the nearness of St. Anthony's Church to the scene of the proposed camps.

Massachusetts, Old Ship of Spanish War, Bombed

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Beginning today the old and obsolete battleship Massachusetts, now lying half-mile from the shore line of Santa Rosa Island, abandoned by the Navy Department, will be the target for live bombs dropped from seaplanes which are to be in the hands of students of class H, now in training at the naval air station.

The old battler helped make history when Cervera's fleet tried to escape at Santiago.

LINERS HUNT IN VAIN FOR OLD GLORY

ROUGH SEAS SEALED DOOM, SAY SHIP CAPTAINS

followed nearly the same route as that taken in the reverse direction by the Old Glory, reported upon her arrival at St. John's last night that she saw no trace of a plane and heard no radio calls.

Through wind-whipped, high rushing seas and cold rain squalls, three ships today continued to plough the North Atlantic in search of the monoplane Old Glory. The liners Nova Scotia, American Merchant and California swept a stretch of hundreds of miles off Newfoundland for a clue to the fate of the plane and its occupants.

Father of Phil Payne Had Premonition of Disaster

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Tom Payne, St. Petersburg, Fla., lumberman and father of Phil Payne, the Old Glory's passenger, said he had a premonition all would not be well in the attempted flight to Rome, and added he had previously attempted to persuade his son to abandon the adventure.

"Am going on Old Glory when it hops," the son replied. "Cannot send the men where I would not go myself. You will understand."

London Expresses Hope, but Fears Old Glory Lost

London, Sept. 8 (I.N.S.).—While the British press and the public are eagerly following the fate of the missing New York-to-Rome monoplane Old Glory, and hope is expressed on every hand that the fliers may be saved, the absence of news is causing the general impression that the plane met the same fate as that of the St. Raphael and the White Bird, the Nungesser and Coli transatlantic machine.

The Air Ministry, Lloyds, officials of Croyden Field and other sources were utterly without information as to the fate of the plane save for the reports which were radioed by the liners Transylvania and Carmania indicating that the plane had been lost.

Bordeaux Watches in Vain for Old Glory

Bordeaux, France, Sept. 8 (I.N.S.).—A sharp watch was maintained all through the night for some trace of Old Glory, and continual attempts were made to get into wireless communication with the plane. Residents of this city, who had hoped to witness a triumphal entry of the plane over European soil, hesitated to concede that the fliers were lost, and the hope was maintained that each passing hour might see the great gold and silver plane winging its way over the city. The proposed course of the plane on its flight to Rome called for Old Glory to pass over Bordeaux before daylight today.

Chamberlin Says Fog May Be Cause of Disaster

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Clarence Chamberlin, with whom Lloyd Bertaud was scheduled to make an Atlantic flight before Bertaud's controversy with Charles Levine, expressed the opinion today that disaster may have befallen Bertaud and his companions in the monoplane Old Glory while flying "blind" through fog.

W. R. Hearst Offers a Reward

Eldridge, La., Sept. 8.—"I know that no reward is necessary to stimulate the search for Old Glory and its occupants," said William Randolph Hearst, "but I will gladly give $25,000 to the captain and crew of the ship which finds them merely as an expression of my gratitude."

WIVES PIN HOPE ON EQUIPMENT OF OLD GLORY

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Three women today tried to bolster each other's courage as the hours passed with no word from the missing monoplane Old Glory and its crew of three.

Mrs. Lloyd Bertaud, wife of the plane's pilot; Mrs. Florence Callagian, his mother, and Mrs. Philip A. Payne, wife of the plane's passenger, expressed belief in the ultimate safety of the fliers, pinning their hope on the safety equipment of the plane.

"Although I'm worried, I'm confident of their success," said Mrs. Payne at the Hotel White, where the three women are staying to keep each other company. Mrs. Payne was formerly Miss Dorothy Hughes and won the title of Miss New York in a beauty contest in 1925.

Mrs. Bertaud said their trip from Old Orchard, Me., where they saw the plane start on its flight, was a trying one.

"We were up on the train practically all night and were tired and worried when we came back to New York. But we're all sure the boys will come out safely.

"Lloyd told me before he left that the only possible thing that would stop them would be engine trouble. And he said he could detect that so far in advance he would have plenty of time to prepare. He didn't worry and we mustn't either."

POPE ANXIOUS FOR NEWS OF OLD GLORY

Rome, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—"What has happened to Old Glory?" was the question on scores of thousands of lips this morning as Rome awaited with deep anxiety for news of the daring fliers who were trying to shorten the distance between the modern and the ancient world.

Crowds last night and this morning waited patiently before bulletin boards, and special editions of the newspapers were snapped up eagerly for the scraps of news which they contained. The current greeting in streets and cafes was:

"Have you heard anything new?"

ROME IS ANXIOUS.

Not for a long time has the population of the Eternal City manifested such an intense personal concern in the success of a foreign enterprise. Although the general populace was yielding reluctantly to the pessimistic hypotheses of officials the public continued to be hopeful that Pilot Lloyd Bertaud and his two companions were able to overcome the difficulty which occasioned their S O S.

At the Vatican constant communication was being maintained with newspaper offices, and Pope Pius was being personally informed at regular intervals of the progress of the search. It was learned that the Pontiff had expressed the greatest concern over the fate of the fliers and was praying earnestly that the accident which had interrupted their mission to the Italian capital might not also mean their death.

MUSSOLINI KEEPS POSTED.

Premier Mussolini also was being kept in constant touch with events by aeronautical officials. When he went this morning to the capitol to deliver a speech before the Congress of the Scientific Organization of Labor, orders were given to inform him of any new developments during his presence there.

One of the first questions asked by Mayor Walker, of New York, on his arrival this morning from Venice was about the crew of Old Glory.

Good men are hard to find. Employers constantly look for trained men to fill big jobs through the Help Wanted Columns of the Boston American Classified Ads.

HEARST SOUGHT TO HALT OLD GLORY'S HOP

Los Angeles, Sept. 8.—William Randolph Hearst gave out copies of telegrams that passed between him and Philip A. Payne, manager of the Old Glory flying expedition and who was one of the three men aboard the craft. Commenting upon the telegrams Mr. Hearst said:

"I was very apprehensive of the trip, on account of the recent disasters, and I did my best to prevent the plane from going. I had no idea that Mr. Payne was going under any circumstances. I earnestly hope that all on board Old Glory will be saved."

San Simeon, Calif., Sept. 2.
E. D. Coblentz,
New York American, New York.
Copy to Phil Payne.

I do not think that Old Glory should start except under the auspices and with the full approval of the Government. In view of the recent disasters, I will not assume responsibility, but will proceed only if the Government will assume authority and responsibility.

The flight is not undertaken for promotion purposes, but to advance aviation, and it is doubtful whether in the light of recent events these flights do advance aviation.

These numerous disasters may retard it. Therefore I await the sanction of the Government.

W. R. Hearst.

New York, N. Y., via San Luis Obispo, Calif., Sept. 4.
William Randolph Hearst, care Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, Calif.:

Secretary of Aviation Trubee Davidson and Department of Commerce pronounced Old Glory the finest ship to attempt the transatlantic flight. In addition, Mr. Coolidge has sponsored flight by putting letter on Old Glory to the King, while Secretary of State Kellogg has sent message to Mussolini. No plane has had such official sponsoring as Old Glory. Two pilots would rather give up all money in the world rather than forego their flight. Most assured they will succeed. Best regards from

PHIL PAYNE.

Los Angeles, Sept. 5, 1927.
Phil Payne,
Mirror, New York,
Dear Phil. Please think of my situation. Have had one airplane lost and two fine men drowned. If another such disaster occurred effect would be terrible not only on my peace of mind but on public opinion. I telegraphed you all this and tried to have you get pilots to accept prize and give up dangerous adventure.

W. R. HEARST.

New York
W. R. Hearst,
Examiner, Los Angeles, Calif.
Dear Chief. The pilots appreciate your magnanimous offer but insist they be allowed to fill their contracts to fly. Weather ideal today and further delay ruinous to morale of pilots. Every possible precaution taken, Army and State Inspectors went over Old Glory this morning and gave written approval to flight. You have been a great chief to work for. I honor and love you and I know you will forgive me any mistakes I have made, affectionately,

PHIL PAYNE.

This last message from Mr. Payne to Mr. Hearst was given by Mr. Payne to a friend at Old Orchard, Me., just before Old Glory left. This friend carried the message to New York and filed it after the monoplane had hopped off.

French Public Shocked at Old Glory's Fate

Paris, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The French public was shocked by the news of the predicament of the monoplane Old Glory, the more so because of the previously unbroken record of successful American transatlantic flights. The newspapers print prominently every scrap of information received, copiously illustrated with photographs and maps.

Air circles express regret, but consider that the incident has vindicated the policy of Leon Givon and Dieudonne Costes in not attempting to take off for America until they are certain they have all the possible chances in their favor.

Prayers for Bertaud, Hill and Payne at N. Y., Mass

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Prayers for the safety of Lloyd Bertaud, Philip A. Payne and James DeWitt Hill, occupants of Old Glory, were offered this morning at a special mass celebrated in the Lady's Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Mrs. Payne, her mother, Mrs. Bertaud and Mrs. Florence Callahan, Bertaud's mother, were among the score of persons who attended the mass.

SEIZE 47 CARS OF DISEASED POTATOES

ton market with these unfit potatoes, Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, city health commissioner, took the matter up with Federal authorities in an effort to prevent unfit potatoes from being shipped from their source of origin.

Federal authorities at once called Food Commissioner Soule of Maine on the telephone and enlisted his support.

The rainy season is responsible for the condition of the potatoes in Maine, according to experts. The wet ground caused many potato fields to be attacked by a number of diseases and plant pests with the result that a large part of the crop was rendered virtually valueless as food.

On September 2 Boston food inspectors condemned three carloads of Maine potatoes that arrived in the Boston & Maine yards. On September 6, four more cars of bad potatoes arrived here and these, too, wer ordered destroyed.

A total of 47 car loads of tubers are now being inspected.

Boston authorities have made strong recommendations to Federal authorities in an effort to keep such shipments from the Boston markets. It is understood some of the potatoes being inspected were rejected by Boston chain stores and also by officers of the commissary department of the navy.

POSING AS POLICE COSTS HIM 7 YEARS OF LIBERTY

Impersonating a policeman cost Richard J. Mello of Plymouth street, Cambridge, seven years and six months of liberty. Mello, who was out on parole after having served three years of a 10-year sentence, pleaded guilty in Suffolk Superior Court today and was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Fosdick. At the end of six months he will be returned to State Prison to complete his original sentence.

Mello was arrested in the South End after he had been out of prison three months, by Patrolman Tiernan of the East Dedham street station, who found him struggling with a young man who objected when Mello, posing as an officer, wooed his girl companion.

WOOD FINED IN CAMBRIDGE AUTO CASE

Raymond A. Wood, latest storm centre in the clashes between Judge Robert Walcott of East Cambridge District Court and Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, was today sentenced to two months in the House of Correction by Judge Arthur P. Stone.

Judge Stone found Wood guilty of driving an auto while under the influence of liquor. Wood appealed and furnished bail of $500.

On a charge of operating so as to endanger the lives of the public, Wood was found guilty and fined $100. Wood pleaded not guilty to these two charges. On a charge of drunkenness he pleaded guilty and was fined $5.

Patrolman Timothy J. Callahan told the court of investigating a collision in traffic at Cambridge and Portland streets on August 24 and finding Wood seated behind the steering wheel of the machine that had bumped one in front.

Wood did not take the stand, but his attorney argued that Wood was not seated at the wheel, but to one side of it. Judge Stone declared that although he might not have been seated behind the wheel at the time, no evidence had been shown that the car reached that point without his driving it there.

WIFE IN FRENZY FLAYS 'RIVAL'

cusations instead of asking questions.

When Judge Greenhalge ultimately succeeded in getting Mrs. Allen to the bench, he warned that if she created any further scenes he would declare a mistrial.

The case went to the jury shortly before noon, after Allen, who divorced his suing wife in 1925, had told her in cross-examination of him that he would not be surprised if she were drunk in the courtroom.

NEVER A HAPPY DAY.

Allen said not one day of his married life had ever been happy. Answering a question as to whether his wife had ever charged him with making love to Mrs. Hozid, he said: "She was always accusing me of making love to everyone from a colored woman to a Chinaman."

"Did you divorce me for being drunk?" Mrs. Allen asked her ex-husband.

"I divorced you for cruel and abusive treatment," re replied.

Q—I'm drunk now, I suppose?

A.—I wouldn't be surprised.

Q.—Didn't you come to my home in Grove street after we were divorced and I gave you a couple of dollars and you never paid it back?

A.—I was your meal ticket.

Mrs. Hozid testified in her direct testimony, under questioning by her counsel, John V. Mahoney, that she is the mother of five children and conducts her Irving street home in the West End as a lodging house.

Q.—Will you state what happened one day in 1924 in relation to Mr. and Mrs. Allen? A.—She was drinking and screaming. I heard a lot of noise and ran up to the third floor where they lived. I saw Mrs. Allen on the floor, drunk and receiving a beating at the hands of Mr. Allen. I pleaded with Mrs. Allen to get up on her feet and be a lady and compose herself. She got up, but she ran into the kitchen, seized a kettle and was about to hurl it at me when Mr. Allen prevented her from doing so.

Q.—State what happened on other occasions? A.—Mrs. Allen was drunk in the hall again and called me a lot of unprintable names. One Sunday she banged at my door and called me a lot of wicked and vile names and said, "I'll kill you and your children."

SON IS WITNESS.

Q.—Can you relate any other incident? A.—Yes. One night I was out with my husband and on returning I found the street in front of the house in an uproar. All the tenants were out in the hallways. Running upstairs, I found Mrs. Allen in a bathrobe, drunk. On the advice of tenants, my husband went to the station house and the police came and removed her. The next day I sent her a notice to vacate and she went to my husband's office and raised a fuss."

Mrs. Hozid denied she had ever had or indicated any affection toward Allen. Allen made the same assertion as regards Mrs. Hozid, and the Allen's 15-year-old son testified he never saw any evidence of affection between his father and tenlandady.

AMOSKEAG TRUSTEES TURN DOWN NEW YORKER'S BID

By Associated Press

The trustees of the Amoskeag Company, holding company of one of the largest cotton textile manufacturers in New England, today announced they had declined a request of "certain New York interests" for a 60-day option for the purchase of the entire assets. The trustees regarded the proposal as inadequate.

Decrease in Suicide Greatest Among Young Persons

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.)—Suicide has been steadily decreasing in the United States, especially among the younger age groups, says the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in a review of statistics from the "ten original registration States" for the period from 1909 to 1924.

The most favorable showing was in the age group from ten to nineteen years, the figures showed, with the group from twenty to twenty-nine ranking second. The third greatest decrease occurred in the age group from thirty to fifty-nine, while the lowest relative decrease were in the group beyond sixty years of age.

THEATRE WORLD HONORS LOEW AT FUNERAL

Glen Cove, N. Y., Sept. 8 (A. P.)—While the theatrical world paused in tribute to one of its greatest figures, funeral services were held today for Marcus Loew at "Pembroke," his home.

He was head of the Loew Vaudeville Circuit and president of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Motion Picture Corporation.

Many vaudeville and motion picture theatres in the country remained closed until 2 o'clock. Flags were at half-staff on clubhouses of theatrical buildings from here to Los Angeles.

The Rev. Dr. Aaron Eiseman, who had known the Loew family for 20 years, officiated. Pallbearers included David Warfield, Nicholas M. Schenck, David Bernstein, Adolph Zukor, Joseph Michaels, John Golden, Lee Shubert, Charles M. Schwab, Edward A. Schiller, Will H. Hays, Aaron Jones, Arthur Brisbane, E. F. Albee and J. Robert Rubin. Burial was at Forest Hills.

Local Theatres Pay Tribute to Marcus Loew

The majority of larger theatres in this city are closed today until 2 p. m. to pay respect to the memory of Marcus Loew, head of the vast theatrical interests which bore his name.

Among them are the State, Orpheum and Columbia Theatres, the Metropolitan and all the subsidiary houses of the Public theatre circuit in this city, the Globe Theatre, the Keith-Albee theatres and others.

In all of the theatres paying respect to Mr. Loew, the orchestras or the organists will play "Lead, Kindly Light" the favorite piece of the theatrical magnate now dead, whose memory is sacred to thousands.

Mr. Loew first heard the piece when President McKinley was buried at Washington.

Hub Newsies Send Wreath to Bier of Friend, Marcus Loew

From the Boston newsboys, to whom Marcus Loew opened his Orpheum Theatre once a month free, a floral piece was sent today to the Loew residence at Glen Cove, L. I., where the funeral took place. The late theatre magnate started his working life as a New York newsboy and took a keen interest in the newsboys of every city.

FAIR WITH TINGE OF FALL IN AIR PROMISED HUB

Though today's forecast promises fair weather through tomorrow, shifting winds and an area of low pressure in the West foretold the possibility of more dampness within a few days. Quebec and Ontario shivered today with the mercury around the thirty-mark. Doucet, Que., reported 28 degrees and Cochrane, Ont., registered 32 degrees.

GIRL, 4, FALLS FROM THIRD FLOOR PORCH

Helen Menninger, four, fell from the rear porch of the Menninger apartment on the third floor of No. 19 Bryant street, Everett, today. The child struck on her head on the roof of a small shed, suffering a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. She was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital where her name is on the danger list.

LEADERS OF DRY LEAGUE ATTEND WHEELER RITES

Columbus, O., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Anti Saloon League leaders from over the country today gathered here to attend funeral services for Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the league, who died Monday.

The public was permitted to view the body as it lay in state at the Central Methodist Episcopal Church from 11:30 to 1:45 p. m. A guard of honor was beside the body.

The Rev. A. C. Schatzman, pastor was in charge of services at the church. Burial was in Greenlawn Cemetery beside his wife, who was burned to death a few weeks ago at Little Point Sable, Mich. The list of honorary pallbearers included Governor A. V. Donahey; Richard Yates, former Governor of Illinois; Colonel Patrick H. Callahan, Louisville; Mayor James J. Thomas of Columbus and all Anti-Saloon League superintendents and members of the national executive committee who were present.

3 FREED ON GROTON ABDUCTION CHARGE

Ayer, Sept. 8.—Mrs. Lura Adams, Elmer Stevens and Chief of Police Edward Leavitt, all of Groton, were discharged in District Court today when their continued case on the charge of abducting Mrs. Vernon Munroe, daughter of Mrs. Adams, came up before Judge Warren Atwood.

The complaint was brought by George L. Munroe of Green street, Cambridge, husband of Mrs. Munroe. He claimed that the three defendants went to the shoe factory in Boston where his wife was employed and made her accompany them to Groton. Munroe blamed his troubles to objections of his wife's family to their marriage.

6,000 BOYS AND GIRLS ATTEND SCOUTS OUTING

More than 6,000 boys and girls who are members of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls, attended the big outing at Revere Beach, arranged by the Boston Evening American.

To say that they enjoyed all the fun is putting it mildly. As a matter of fact, they had a "whale of a time," as any person who happened to be at the beach will attest. Happiness was evident everywhere among the boys and girls.

To give some idea of the magnitude of the outing it may be stated that Boy and Girl Scouts from as far away as California, Montana, Alabama, Georgia and Cost Ric were present. They happened to be visiting relatives in Greater Boston.

Strips of tickets, each containing 15 admissions to different attractions at the beach, were distributed to the youngsters, and they piled pell mell into each place. Never was a more orderly group of boys and girls in attendance at any of the attractions.

The attractions to which the boys and girls were admitted free of charge on tickets provided by the Boston Evening American were the following:

Airplane Whirl, Love's Lottery, Hippodrome Merry-Go-Round, Derby Racer, Auto and Outlaw, the Whirl, Comp In, Hey Day, Hurley's Scrambler, the Caterpillar, Oman's Temple of Mystery, the other Law and Outlaw, the Freak Show, Hurley's Hurdlers and Hurley's Whip.

SPORTS STAGED ON SANDS.

Late in the afternoon, after the children had been given plenty of opportunity to participate in the fun at the various amusement concessions, several interesting games in which all Boy Scouts were permitted to take part were staged.

The officials in charge were Donald North, Hans V. Kudlich, Duncan Mackeller and Edward S. Roche, all scout executives of Boston. The judges were Sergeant Clarence Hernandez of Fort Banks, Arthur L. Genume, scout executive of Boston and Louis P. Barcelo, scoutmaster of Boston. Sergeant T. M. Brundage, stationed at Quincy, as assistant field scout executive of Boston Council also assisted as also did Walter J. Prendergast of the Massachusetts Humane Society.

According to these officials the outing was a complete success from every angle. Not only did the boys and girls have a good time but many inquiries were made by parents as to where their children might join the organization.

In the evening there was a parade along the boulevard for which Colonel H. D. Comensis of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston was chief marshal. Over 1800 boys and girls took part in the parade.

the universe as a "space filled with a substantial entity, in a violent state of spinning, the seat of an immensity of energy such as never has been imagined."

A higher power guides the world, according to Lodge.

Long ago one scientist said: "I have swept the skies with my telescope and found no sign of a Divine ruler."

A hophead might sweep an express train with its inquiring eye and find no sign of an engineer—to say nothing of a chairman of the board of directors, far away.

Near Tallahassee, Henry Ridley, sentenced to four years on the chain gang, was sick "and given medical attention." So says the keeper. But Ridley didn't seem to work, so they put him in the "sweat box," a narrow wooden box, just big enough to hold a convict standing upright.

Taking him out dead, they admitted that he was probably "sicker than we thought." There seems to be room for improvement there.

Stocks up again yesterday, "another long series of new high records" is the sad news for the bears. Stock exchange seats up also. One sold for $235,000. Don't sell this country or anything in it SHORT—you might lose.

250 IN SCHOOL FLEE FROM FIRE

Clinton, Sept. 8.—More than 250 pupils and teachers in St. Mary's Parochial School were led to safety today, while flames destroyed St. Mary's Church, adjacent, with a loss of $25,000.

The Rev. John Osnaka discovered the flames and at once ran to the schoolhouse. He summoned the pupils from their rooms and led an orderly march from the building.

ISSUE 1,000,000 SEALS IN AUTO SAFETY DRIVE

Autoists in Massachusetts whose machines do not carry an authorized seal showing their brakes, lights and steering gear have been inspected and found in proper working order, will be halted by State inspectors after September 24 and will be subject to arrest if any of their equipment is found faulty.

This was the word from Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today, who explained the part his department will play in the State-wide safety campaign which will be conducted from September 12 to September 24.

SEEK CO-OPERATION.

"We are taking an active part in this campaign in conjunction with the civic and automobile organizations of the State," said Mr. Goodwin.

"During the campaign our inspectors will do all in their power to see that the laws are obeyed, and in order to make it possible for the owners of cars to ascertain mechanical defects and repair them the department has worked out the following program:

"We have communicated with 2,800 service stations and repairmen throughout the Commonwealth, where competent mechanics are employed, asking for co-operation in the free inspection of any motor vehicle which may be brought to them.

MILLION STICKERS.

"We have furnished to those who have responded stickers, with instructions to paste them on some part of the car other than the windshield, if in their opinion the equipment, including lights, brakes, steering gear, etc., complies with the law.

"More than a million of these stickers have been sent out, and after this campaign is over, there will be an intensive drive by the inspection force of the department against all persons who do not have these stickers on their cars, the assumption being that the owners have made no attempt to accept the free service offered them."

SOUTH BOSTON MEN FREED OF PHONE CO. AUTO THEFT

Because of lack of prosecution, Judge Bennett in municipal court today dismissed the cases of Peter J. Kelley and Andrew F. Griffin, both of South Boston, charged with larceny of an automobile and $1,000 in nickels and dimes, property of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, last July. The case had already been continued six times and today Special Officers Lynch and Dwyer asked Judge Bennett to dismiss the case. They explained that they were unable to get a material witness needed in the case.

Thoroughbreds Arrive

Twenty thoroughbred stallions, coming to America for breeding purposes, today reached the Hub from Rotterdam on the Shipping Board steamship Sac City. They will be shipped to Greeley, Ia.

"MISS AMERICA" BEAUTIES IN QUALIFYING CONTEST

Atlantic City, Sept. 7 (A.P.)—The charms of America's fairest were matched today for the American beauty bathing revue, the qualifying contest for the crown of Miss America of 1927. From 72 aspirants for the crown, 15 qualifiers, comprising three from each of five geographical sections of the country will appear in the final contest tomorrow night when the successor of Miss Norma Smallwood of Tulsa, Okla., "Miss America of 1926" will be chosen.

Last Trolley Car in Nevada Has Made Its Last Trip

Reno, Nev., Sept. 5 (A.P.).—Nevada today is a State without a trolley car.

Doddering down antiquated tracks, the last street car of Reno, and likewise of the State, rode into oblivion last night and the system will be scrapped. Buses will replace trolleys.

AUTOIST NEAR DEATH IN AVOIDING CHILDREN

Charles F. Pease of Warwick road, Melrose Highlands is near death at the Melrose Hospital as the result of his car swerving after he tried to avoid the group of children in Woburn street, Lexington, today. The car ran over the sidewalk and crashed into the corner of a house, Pease being hurled in the wreckage of the machine. Eleanor Modouna, aged six, of No. 134 Woburn street, was injured about the head and body.

516-POUNDER TOO BIG FOR JAIL, SO HE GETS BAIL

Washington, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Washington police were baffled in an attempt to incarcerate one prisoner—there was no cell in the city jail large enough to hold his 516 pound avoirdupois. The arrested man is Alvin C. Ogle, charged with the sale of liquor. Ogle, however, ended their difficulty by obtaining a release under $1,500 bail.

CAPTURED CONVICT HELD FOR AUTO THEFT

Edward J. Burke of Lee street, Cambridge, one of three men who escaped from the House of Correction on Deer Island, Monday night, by swimming to a boat, was held in $5,000 bail for the grand jury today in Roxbury District Court on the charge of larceny of an automobile. Two other men, Joseph Crowley and William Sullivan, both of Cherry street, Cambridge, also appeared on the same charge, but when Burke absolved them in connection with the automobile larceny, they were held in $1,000 each on a charge of using an automobile without authority.

Marion Davies to Film New Stage Success

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Lots of things happen when you are three thousand miles from home and Hollywood. For instance, I hadn't the remotest idea that Marion Davies was in Irving Thalberg's mind for the role in "Her Cardboard Lover" that Jeanne Eagels created on the stage. When I left home all the talk of Marion's plans were centered on "The Patsy" with King Vidor directing.

Then came a gossipy note saying that Jeanne Eagels had expressed her delight that Marion Davies had been chosen by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the part she had so effectively portrayed on the stage.

I took my trustworthy Remington in hand as soon as that note reached me and telegraphed Marion for a confirmation. Her reply characteristically short and to the point reached me.

"Nobody but me to play 'Her Cardboard Lover.' Love Marion."

The economy Miss Davies uses in sending telegrams is a matter that business firms might do well to copy. It usually add a lot of superfluous ifs and ands and get mixed in my sentences, while Marion's ten word limit nearly always tells all one needs to know without enriching the telegraph companies.

Marion Davies.

Anyway, I think it is reasonably sure that Marion wins the screen rights to the Eagles play that flourished so profitably on Broadway for many months. And I don't think it is any secret that there were many eager and hopeful glances in its direction by nearly every star in the business.

THE surface has hardly been scratched by the independent companies in England. Joseph Brandt is so sure of the opportunities for an exchange of courtesies between the independent producing companies abroad and here that he is sailing for Europe Sept. 18 with definite plans for such an association.

He will release Columbia Pictures through the Film Booking Company of Europe, an organization apart from the Film Booking Company of America. He will look at English pictures and if there are any that stand comparison with our own American product he will bring them to this country.

His efforts as ambassador may do much to establish friendly relations between the two countries. In the past England has felt none too friendly toward our American and it may be a good idea to see some of the British pictures here.

HERE is a little surprise. I heard it whispered that David Wark Griffith's next picture is really a film version of Paolo and Francesca, Dante's famous characters. Whether or not Mr. Griffith is taking Stephen Phillips' play I cannot say since my information does not come from him.

OUR old friend, Hoot Gibson, is listening with an attentive ear to an offer made him by a British producing company. David Epstein, who came from the Coast to talk shop with an European company, under cross-examination did not deny that Hoot's contract with Universal will expire shortly and that it is the ambition of this Western hero to take a little trip abroad.

"Nothing is settled, however," said Mr. Gibson's emissary, "and it won't be until I submit an offer to Mr. Gibson from the European film company."

ALL 'COON HUNTIN' LOOKS ALIKE TO HIM; GETS 2

Back Bay hunters who are sticklers for the strict and undeviating in field and forest touch and technique, received a severe pain in the neck today when Patrolman Dick O'Meara of L-6 Back Bay Station, a man with none of that delicate understanding of the hunt excepting in connection with human quarry, trapped two roly poly raccoons with a pokerish ash barrel.

Such trapping is as ashes in the sensibilities of real and expensively-equipped Nimrods.

The policeman spotted his game at dawn in front of No. 850 Beacon street, Kenmore, and romped all over the street in an attempt to catch them. Then came along a party of early autoists and they got out to aid.

"You never can grab a raccoon with only bare hands," advised one. "But I have no gloves," said O'Meara simply.

So he got an ash barrel from the rear of an apartment house and finally corralled the animals, both of which were sent to the Franklin Park Zoo.

Two hours later Paul Robinson, No 939 Beacon street, galloped into the police station and announced his two pet raccoons had disappeared from their coop. He was told where to find them and departed for Franklin Park.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Miss Vernon Abbott Ladd Given Coming-Out Party at "Arden," Home of Her Parents, Deep in the Woods at Beverly Farms

MISS VERNON ABBOTT LADD, DAUGHTER OF DR. AND MRS MAYNARD LADD made her bow to society yesterday. Miss Ladd, golden haired and sweet of mien, is a bud doubly endowed with good fortune. Not only has she much personal charm to carry her successfully through a debut, but as the daughter of a noted sculptress the party had a special significance. It had for its setting the sylvan beauties of "Arden," the Ladd country place, deep in Beverly Farms woods, where may be seen a wealth of models from the hands of Anna Coleman Ladd, mother to the debutante.

EVERY GLEN AND LEAFY nook and shaded hillock at "Ardea" is background for either a noted group or single figure piece. Then there is a charming small "Hermitage," designed, built and decorated with Mrs. Ladd's creative genius. An old coach house on the place, with its broad doors and dusky loft under the rafters, is an ideal studio showroom, and lastly, there is the workroom to which only Mrs. Ladd's very closest friends have entry during her working hours. "Arden" looked lovely yesterday with dappled sunlight lighting the scene for Miss Vernon's debut.

FOUNTAINS TINKLED, AND A stringed orchestra played in the arched opening high up in the coachhouse. Everything was more or less al fresco, with the reception itself on the lawn. The bud wore rosebud crepe, with an enormous hat of rose tint. Mrs. Ladd's wide hat and lacy frock were mauve, a tint carrying both fawn and bois de rose in its soft depths, and Miss Gabriella Ladd set off her brunette brilliancy with a spirited coral costume.

THE SEXTET OF YOUNG girls pouring tea for the guests included Miss Farmela Barnum, Miss Elizabeth Church, Miss Elizabeth Livermore, Miss Cynthia Means, Miss Madeleine Post and Miss Ruth Swift, a group associated with both Miss Vernon Ladd's debut season and Miss Gabriella's. Almost immediately after making her bow, Miss Vernon Ladd goes back to Vassar, so that future debutante festivities will necessarily be confined to those intervals in which college work is not paramount, the vacations when boys and girls are "home from school."

THE EDWIN SIBLEY WEBSTERS' house party at their country place in Holderness included that dark-eyed beauty from the North Shore, Miss Barbara Forbes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs William Stuart Forbes of Lone Tree Farm in Hamilton. In Hamilton (which is synonymous with Myopia the Forbeses are prominent in the set devoted to horse shows and the hunt. Mr. Forbes had a string of five mounts entered in the Myopia Labor Day show and rode several times himself.

MISS ETHEL BARRYMORE'S stay at the North Shore covers a scant three days' duration, but is replete with interest. She puts up at the Oceanside in Magnolia, as does Rollo Peters, who also comes from New York for the scenia at Stillington this evening. For these two stage luminaries, Leslie Russell gives a supper party after the performance, and tomorrow Miss Barrymore departs for New York and her professional duties.

MISS ELIZABETH LIVERMORE
Society girl poured tea at coming out party of Miss Vernon Ladd at "Arden," Beverly Farms.

Miss Nathalie Potter Guest of Miss Mary Ames at Newport

WHEN MISS NATHALIE POTTER arrived in Newport for her visit with Miss Mary Ames at the Ames villa in the avenue, she was wearing a most becoming travel wrap of pottery red with a many-caped collar, a la poetillion. Miss Potter is the granddaughter of the late Professor Charles Sprague Sargent through the distaff line, her mother being Mrs Nathaniel Bowditch Potter. Miss Potter and the sprightly Miss Ames take their amusing social way through practically the same sefted circles, both in Boston and New York, where each figured in debutante affairs of importance and beauty.

Where's Emily? by CAROLYN WELLS

Author of "The MYSTERY GIRL"

Story of a Girl Who Did Just What She Chose and Then Took Flight

Emily Duane, care free and wealthy leader of the young set, disappears on the eve of her wedding to Rodney Sayre, scion of old New England family. She had rushed from her wedding rehearsal with Polly Pennington to visit Mrs. Kitty Laurence in the maternity hospital. They never reached the hospital, Jim Pennington later told a worried nuptial party. Polly was found dead at the bottom of a ravine. Where was Emily?

Emily's cultivation of mysticism, then the fad, and the exclusion of her teacher, Swami Lal Singh, from her will upon her marriage, directed first suspicion toward the Hindu. Detective Fleming Stone, engaged by Sayre to pierce the mystery, found his first tangible clue in New York.

CHAPTER [illegible]

At the hospital, I was put to bed [illegible] and was [illegible]

dition was brought about by a [illegible] of some frightened nature, and [illegible] decided it [illegible] nothing definite could be done until she regained consciousness.

"All right," Betty said, and [illegible] relieved by the nurse's calm assurance of the situation. "Come on, Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. Lane, and [illegible]

"Come whenever you like, but of course, I can't promise you it sees like pretty [illegible]

"Tell me, nurse," Betty cajoled "have you ever seen just such a case before? Exactly like this, I mean?"

"I can't [illegible] I know what you [illegible] cases, and if [illegible] I'm sure [illegible]

"Not that I'm [illegible] a baby, too. Which you could see for [illegible] probably you can [illegible]"

So it [illegible] Betty went home.

Sayre positively refused to go. He declared he would stay the night in the visitors' waiting room, and be there in case Emily came to herself and asked for him.

The nurse assented at this devotion but told him if he chose to stay there and lie on the hospital sofa with a [illegible] added that to do so would be a [illegible] of his wedding day duties. [illegible] better go home and get his rest.

But Rodney was immovable, and he sat on the hospital sofa with a determined patience.

Fleming Stone was elated at Emily's return. He said

"Her reappearance is in no way due to my efforts. I don't know at all where she has been, but I do know I'm going to track down the

Salient Points of the Bidding

North's assist with but two cards of his partner's suit was in accord with the accepted principle that two cards of such suit headed by A-K, king, or Queen are the equivalent in value of the normal expectancy of three cards.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 4. The vital play of the hand occurs at this trick. If West, in playing the 10, is not false-carding, then the 10 must either be a singleton or be accompanied by the Queen alone. If he is false-carding with two smaller cards in his hand, then he is carrying the practice to an extreme length. The conclusion is obvious. West either has no more Hearts or but one more. If one more and it be the Queen, Declarer's Ace will capture it; if a smaller card, then East must hold the Queen sufficiently guarded to prevent its capture, even should the Jack finesse be taken. South's play therefore in coming up with the Ace, though fortunate, was also logical.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

SUES GRID STAR FOR HER BOY

Mrs. Bentley Seeks to Have Judgment Modified in Action Against Tufts Hero

Edna W. Bentley of Newton, who won a dramatic divorce suit against George M. Bentley, former Tufts football star, in Middlesex Probate Court earlier in the year, was back in court again today, seeking custody of their child.

The former gridiron warrior and his wife filed cross suits, and possession of the child, George M., Jr., was the principal object of much acrimonious testimony.

It developed during the progress of the suit that the mother who from the custody of the boy, did not have sufficient funds to provide a home for him and it was necessary for her to live with in-laws with strangers.

Mrs. Bentley, who claimed her husband caused her to lose weight until she weighed only 100 pounds, won her divorce but court awarded custody of the child to the father.

In her latest action, Mrs. Bentley claims her financial position has been materially changed and that she now is in a position to provide a home for him. She asks that the court decree be modified and she be granted custody, praying that her husband be ordered to contribute to his child's support.

The petition is returnable Sept. 13 when Bentley will answer the petition.

WAR VETS WANT THEM DEPORTED

Resolution Passed Calling on Congress to Enact Suitable Laws

Providence, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The Veterans of Foreign Wars national encampment today adopted a resolution urging the deportation of all aliens convicted of seditious acts and also urged that naturalized citizens who are convicted of such offences be deprived of their citizenship and also deported. The resolution calls upon Congress to enact suitable legislation to carry out this recommendation.

A resolution was introduced by Judge Holon A. Enlos, delegate from Indianapolis, Judge Enlos explained that although the United States constitution does free speech, it does not uphold the right to speak against the constitution.

The provisions of sedition referred to in the resolution would be in the State courts.

The encampment also adopted resolutions opposing employment of married women in the civil service except those whose husbands because of disability are unable to support their families, urging that in times of an adequate army and supporting military training in schools and universities be made a part of the curriculum of [illegible] and urging that [illegible] be given [illegible] veterans not now drawing the maximum.

A resolution calling upon chance to establish a college of diplomacy similar to the military and naval colleges was rejected.

British Hot Dog Is Basking in Favor of Aristocrats

New York, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The Piccadilly cousin of the Coney Island proletarian hot dog is an aristocrat of edibles and enjoys blue book backing.

Francis Daniell, an English sportsman, a friend of King George and president of England's Hot Dog, Limited, is in America for conference with his business associate, William Halsted Vanderpool, an American, and a blue book entry, with the view of introducing the frankfurter at the more exclusive British sporting events.

The British hot dog, because of England's food laws, is sold in a wax wrapper.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE KILLING

Although Patrolman Thomas Harrington was discharged by Dorchester District Court when arraigned in connection with the shooting of Dr. I. Mellenoff, Dr. [illegible] Harrington [illegible] will be [illegible] Grand Jury Monday, when Assistant District Attorney Frederick [illegible] will present evidence for both the Commonwealth and for the officer.

Harrington shot and killed young Mellenoff after, according to an [illegible] he had been set upon and robbed by Frederick Hayes and Thomas Lavelle, also of Dorchester.

SEEKS DIVORCE AND CUSTODY OF CHILD

Charging unfaithfulness, Charles P. Webb, a real estate operator of Arlington, today filed suit for divorce from Mildred French Webb of Belmont in Middlesex Probate Court and also asked the custody of a minor child, Robert F. Webb, born in 1912. Edward L. Colby of Arlington is named by Webb.

2 GIRLS HURT; AUTOIST FLEES

Two Watertown girls were injured today when an automobile crashed into a trolley car at Summer and Mt Auburn streets, Watertown. Police are seeking the driver of the automobile, who fled after the accident

The injured girls are Mary Dardis, Pitchburg street, Watertown, and Catherine Leonard, Rutland street, Watertown. They were taken to Cambridge Hospital, where the former was treated and sent home. The Leonard girl was hurt more severely, with scalp and hip injuries and multiple bruises of the body.

They told police of accepting a ride in Central square, Waltham, and declared they did not know the driver. A half full bottle of liquor was found in the car.

The automobile, a light coach, was registered in the name of Rocco Marcoccio of Waltham, according to the police. Shortly after the accident, Marcoccio reported his auto had been stolen.

William E. Brown, motorman of the car, which was inbound, declared he saw the driver jump from the wrecked car and run through Summer street.

PLAN PORCH SLAYING ARREST ON SATURDAY

Fall River, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—A probable arrest Saturday in connection with the murder of Ernest Pelletier of the city was announced here today by District Attorney William Crossley. The district attorney said he wished to question two more persons believed to have some knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the murder before taking action.

Pelletier was shot as he sat on his front porch, at 11:15 o'clock, on the night of Aug. 27. Four boys, wading in Cook Pond, a few days later, found a 32-calibre automatic pistol, which State experts declared to be the gun used in the shooting.

RANNEY LEAVES HALF-MILLION

Fletcher Ranney, prominent Boston lawyer, who died on September 3, left an estate of half a million dollars, the bulk of which goes to his son and daughter, Dudley P. Ranney, assistant district attorney of Norfolk County, and Mrs. Ethel R. Lanney Long.

The will, which was filed for probate in Suffolk Probate Court today, names the son as executor.

Of the fortune $499,000 is in personal property and $11,000 in real estate. The attorney left $1,000 to his secretary, Mary B. Goddard of Brookline, while the Ranney home at No. 72 Bay State road is left for the use of a sister, Helen M. Ranney, during her lifetime. The money owed the deceased lawyer by Nathaniel P. Hoxie, and his wife of Plymouth are cancelled and $ [illegible] is left to their daughter, Mary F. Hoxie.

Each of the family employes is left $100. A codicil to the will provides that Mr. Ranney's law office shall be maintained for one year after his death for the benefit of his son and his nephew, Attorney Thomas Allen.

SECOND PANEL CALLED TO FILL CLINE JURY

Rockville, Ct., Sept. 8 (A.P.)—A second panel of veniremen had been subpoenaed today to make possible the selection of a jury before which Edward Cline, novelist, should answer to charges of the State that on May 16 he murdered his friend and house guest, Wilfred P. Irwin, at the Cline home in Mansfield. Yesterday's session of Superior Court resulted in the selection of four jurors from the 62 talesmen examined.

Mrs. Irwin, widow, and Professor George Irwin, brother of the murdered man, are expected to arrive in Rockville, presumably to be ready to testify for the State when the occasion arrives.

Exemption from Civil Service examinations for clerks of 25 years service was asked.

WOMAN WINS HONOR FOR PEACE EFFORTS

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—For her efforts to bring peace to Europe during the great war, Mme. Monika Schwimmer, Hungarian pacifist and feminist, will receive the recognition of authors, feminist and pacifist leaders and scientists throughout the world on her fiftieth birthday next Sunday. Mme. Schwimmer will be presented a testimonial letter signed by former co-workers and admirers.

Mme. Schwimmer recently wrote Henry Ford asking him to vindicate her reputation. She asserted Ford's own associates wrecked the Ford peace expedition in 1916 and then tried to shift the blame to her.

SIX-HOUR NIGHT FOR P. O. MEN

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Congress will be appealed to by the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks to enact legislation recognizing six hours of night work by postoffice clerks as equal to eight hours of day service.

Resolutions directing officials of the organization to centre attention to having Congress enact such legislation were adopted at the convention of the association here.

Another resolution urged a reclassification of salaries providing a minimum entrance salary for clerks of $2,000 and automatic annual increases of $100 a year for four years with creation of two special grades providing salaries of $2,500 for clerks of five years service and $2,600 for those of six years service. The present maximum is $2,400.

POLICE CHARGE FIRE WAS SET

Fire which Revere fire and police officials assert was the work of incendiary origin, early today destroyed the first floor of a two-story apartment house at No. 6 Cedar avenue, Revere.

The fire was discovered in the apartment occupied by the Picarello family, absent in New York on a visit, and firemen assert that the floor of the apartment from the dining room to a bedroom was covered with heavily saturated blankets. Paint remover was the solution used, they say.

Before the blaze was checked one fireman was severely injured, and the family of the owner of the house, George G. Burke, was forced to flee from their second story apartment through thick smoke and oil fumes down the rear stairway.

Firemen were handicapped by smoke and hot air explosions. One of Fireman Daniel McCarthy's hands was almost severed by flying glass. He was treated by a nearby physician.

When firemen entered they found two distinct blazes. Before these were extinguished five rooms and their contents were destroyed. The fire officials managed to obtain two of the badly charred, saturated blankets which are to be sent to the State Fire Marshal when he investigates the fire.

ELOPERS TAKE THEIR OWN MINISTER ALONG

Burlington, N. J., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The lovesick pair of elopers in to bring their own minister. John T. Kincaid and Marie C. Geiger invited the Rev. William P. Young for a little ride. Learning his destination was Elkton, Md., the minister demanded to be let out. Kincaid stepped on the gas, and when [illegible] to the [illegible] a refuge to Elkton clergyman. The young couple wanted him along to be sure the knot was legal.

LEEDS GETS LICENSE TO FLY AN AIRPLANE

Washington, Sept. 8 (A.P.)—Frederick Leeds, in plate to aviation seems to be the transition of one family's specialty. William B. Leeds has qualified for a private air pilot's license. The name of his wife, the former Princess Xenia of Russia, has been given to a plane now in Dublin waiting to hop to Philadelphia. His father was the tin plate king.

TRIES SUICIDE 3 WAYS IN HOLYOKE, BUT FAILS

Holyoke, Sept. 8 (A.P.)—Declared he failed to have been crazed by drink, Charles Stankus of New York City made three attempts to end his life. After leaping from a piazza of a dwelling without being injured, he jumped into the Connecticut River, but was rescued by police and taken to the station, where he tried to hang himself with a sheet from his cell cot.

LINDY GOES HUNTING AS PLANE IS OVERHAULED

Butte, Mont., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh left his monoplane, "Spirit of St. Louis," here today for a complete overhauling while he joined a party of friends in a hunting and fishing trip to Swan Lake, a resort near Glacier National Park in northern Montana. He came to Butte yesterday from Helena, Mont., and plans to resume his national tour Monday with a flight to Spokane.

MOTHER ASKS COURT TO REVERSE SELF

CLEVELAND PLAYS SOX TODAY

Bill Carrigan Expects Peaceful Series With 'Murderers' Out of Town

Looks like a happy weekend for the Red Sox. The Cleveland Indians are here for a series, and the outfit that used to belong to Tris Speaker is the one team in the league that has been soft for the Fenway flock.

The Sox, aided and abetted by Babe Ruth, have stirred up a lot of new baseball interest and a new winning streak will bring fair crowds out to the orchard, where nothing is left but to wind up the campaign.

Manager Bill knows that his club isn't going to get out of the cellar but he has hopes for next year. His work of kid ball players has been developed very well by the past few months and he will start another campaign with a crew that has plenty of big league experience.

Martin Jen, Rollinson, Howell Ryan, Spencer Harris, Russell and several others have been made over into real prospects and there's nobody in the camp much over the voting age. Enjoy-meeting will not be exactly exciting for the fans in Sox parks next year, but it will be something, and the dwellers of the wail boxes will be present to see the Lewiston heaver work.

BIG BABE RUTH gave the wallop a real treat in his last two days, clicking off five homers and thereby hauling himself right up next to his 11-round total. Babe had an August slump but he has recovered. He is hitting the ball as well as he ever did and with his sore right heel of his own stability to shoot at, he has a great chance.

Gehrig is now four circuit blows back, but Lou has been better on the home parx than the Babe. Two $50,000 beauts is apparently off on one of those wild swings just now, and the chances of Gehrig are very, very slim.

Mister Ruth attracted some 60,000 customers to the Penway in three days, and according a erased a huge hook of the season's deficits. He is the baseball giant's draw, and if he does set up a new record, he will be urged to demand a bigger slice, regardless of contract, by the united fans of the land. Seventy thousand just chicken feed for a card like Babe.

GENE TUNNEY

World's Heavyweight Champion

(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Lakevilla, Ill., Sept. 8.—I received more real physical and mental benefit from my day's lay-off than if I had spent the entire afternoon in the ring knocking sparring partners galley west and beating a weary tattoo on the light punching bag.

I only wish the fight were to take place tomorrow instead of two weeks from that date. Frankly and honestly, I have never felt in better condition since I have started boxing and my only concern is to carefully keep the keen edge I now have until September 22, when I meet Jack Dempsey.

No, that I fear that I started training too early and reached the point of perfection too soon before the fight. I am always in pretty good shape, but I was never so used to hot and hot weather as I am now. Ordinarily during the hot spell I would start in and pace

MIGHT act instinctively, but there would be no intelligent guidance and ring generalship while I was in there trying to put all I had into thirty or forty minutes of heart-breaking boxing.

That is why my relaxation to me is just as important as any work I do in the ring. But it must be the right kind. I might rest from the ring but the time gained would be wasted if I allowed myself to be beset by a dozen petty worries or annoyed by constant interruptions from people who merely want to come out and have a look at me.

After the past five days of concentration in moving out from Speculator I never needed today's rest.

The boys and the camp were all settled and after my road work Eddie Eagan and I decided that this would be a good day to sneak away and do a little reading, which is exactly what we did.

I and aside the day and got my mind completely off the fight. It was so successful that I am going to try it again today, after a couple of hours on the road in the morning.

Then I will put in three hard days in a row Friday, Saturday and Sunday, in the ring.

After that I will rest again Monday and go in again on Tuesday. That is my theory of how I should train myself to meet Jack Dempsey.

Paulino Favored to Defeat Tom Heeney Tonight

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—With a chance at Jack Sharkey awaiting the winner, Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish woodchopper, and Tom Heeney, Australian heavyweight, are scheduled to mill through 15 rounds tonight at Madison Square Garden. It will be the second meeting. Paulino having been awarded a decision in the first bout.

The Basque remains the favorite in the betting, even though his previous victory over the New Zealander was more or less unpopular. Benny Touchstone of Florida and Harold Mays, New Jersey heavyweight, will box 10 rounds in the semi-final.

POLO PRACTICE HAS ENDED

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Both British invader and American defender held their final practice matches prior to the International games.

Both won, but not too impressively, the Army-in-India scoring 15 goals to 9 against a team made up of Sanford, Hopping, Cowdin and Lieut. Guinness, while a rearranged American team with three of the big four in the saddle, scored 13 goals to 7.

Sarah Palfrey in Net Finals

Philadelphia, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Margaret Gladman, Santa Monica, Calif., and Sarah Palfrey, Boston, will meet in the finals of the Girls' National tennis championship tournament as the result of today's play at the Philadelphia Cricket Club.

Miss Gladman defeated Louise Zinke, Cincinnati, 8—7, 6—4, and Miss Palfrey won from Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Cal., 6—3, 6—4, in the semi-finals.

60,000 Ringside Seats for Big Fight

Chicago, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Now that a large block of the seats for the $2,000,000 Tunney-Dempsey battle, on Sept. 22, have been sold, Tex Rickard is going to let the public see what seats they have purchased. He announced today that the blueprint of the seating arrangements in Soldier Field would be made public on Sept. 18.

More than $2,000,000 worth of tickets have been sold toward Rickard's orginal estimate of a $3,000,000 gate. Ringside section, at $40 a piece, has spread to include $6,000 seats, a third more than the original figures.

"GREEN BULL" WILL BE TOPSFIELD FAIR FEATURE

One of the features at the Topsfield Fair, Sept. 14-17, is the "Green Bull," an animal actor in the troupe directed by John R. Agee, for many years connected with the Barnum & Bailey and Ringling Bros. circus.

The "Green Bull" is considered one of the finest and most intelligent of its species. For many years it has appeared before audiences in this country and abroad. Agee also has his famous trained horses who go through their tricks without an apparent signal or sign of any sort.

GENE RESTS TO QUIET NERVES

"Ready for the Battle of My Life," Says the Heavyweight Champion

Lake Villa, Ill., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Now that Gene Tunney must be careful in his boxing engagements for the next week or more because of his injured eye, he can devote his time to storing up nervous energy. One of the reasons for the heavyweight champion's move to solitude is the opportunity it gives him for absolute rest and quiet and restoration of the nerve supply.

With no boxing scheduled today, Tunney's quarters at the Cedarcrest Country Club held only the champion's retinue and a corps of guard of newspapermen. Less than a dozen visitors managed to worm past the police guard about the club in the course of a day. "There is nothing quite so draining on the nerve supply as shaking hands," Tunney said today. "It is more in the nature of an actual training, both physically and mentally."

Despite the heat and excessive humidity, Tunney feels himself to be within a few notches of his best physical condition. At 192 pounds, the titleholder is carrying scarcely a pound of excess weight. Since Gene plans no attempt to make a definite poundage for the title tilt with Jack Dempsey at Soldiers Field, Sept. 22, it appears likely today that the champion could scale well over the two hundreds he weighed to win the crown from Dempsey last July. Even the fight were tomorrow Tunney said, "I'm ready right now for the battle of my life. I'll never be any better."

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

Ernest Heitkamp, golf expert for the Chicago American, has invented a putting stroke which has become widely known and followed in the middle west and which now is attracting considerable attention, elsewhere, and his method is the only one I have ever seen that automatically avoids the common tendency of unknowingly having the blade turned at a very slight angle across the direction line. In the Heitkamp putting method the shaft is taken, in the left hand, between the index finger and the next finger. You can place the right hand with the same method or grip, or use the conventional grip with that hand. The effect is that the club hangs in true pendulum fashion.

Chicago's Gold Coast Adopts Gene Tunney

Chico, Sept. 8 (I.N.S.).—Gene Tunney, the handsome heavyweight boxing champion, has been taken up by Chico's exclusive North Shore society set, it was learned today.

Last May evening, the belated news reels, Tunney was a dinner guest at the Lake Forest home of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley leaders of Lake Forest society.

Gene wright as home and appeared to joy himself immensely. He left early, however, pleading that the rigors of training demanded that he be in camp by 9 o'clock.

Tunney is said to have received other invitations to homes of wealthy Lake Forest residents, but declined them on the advice of counsel. According to Billy Gibson, his manager, the champion's pleasant, easy manner is said to have made him a distinct favorite among his millionaire "neighbors" in the vicinity of his Lake Villa camp.

STONEHAM BUYS SOCCER CLUB

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Charles A. Stoneham, owner of the New York National League baseball club today announced purchase of the Indiana Flooring Company's eleven of the American Soccer League. The club will play its home games at the Polo Grounds. The purchase price was not announced.

Stoneham said he considered soccer an ideal sport for the Polo Grounds during the Fall and Winter months and indicated National League baseball parks in other cities might be put to such use.

Remember the Gloom 35 Years Ago Today

Thirty-five years ago today—September 8, 1892—Boston was shrouded in the densest gloom that has ever descended on the city. Stern men fought in vain to hold back tears and bestirred to drown their sorrows in a manner customary then and now—but legal then—while the latter set at home gave vent to their emotions openly.

All because on the evening before way down in New Orleans one John Lawrence Sullivan had met defeat at the hands of gentleman Jim Corbett after holding the title of world's heavyweight champion for a colorful decade.

During his reign on the throne, the Boston Strong Boy established himself not only as one of the greatest fighters of all times but as the most popular and romantic figure in the annals of sport and the news of his defeat was the cause of unprecedented sorrow from coast to coast.

Gentlemen:—

A word of appreciation for your Lucky Strike cigarettes.

On May 29th last, I was operated upon for gastric ulcer and appendicitis. The day after I wanted a smoke real badly and asked my doctor. He advised strongly against it stating that even a slight cough would "rip me open" and cause additional pain, and if you've had the experience you know that to be so. However, I had a package of "Luckies" in my coat pocket and persuaded my nurse to get them. She did and I smoked eight that day. To make it short I smoked all the two weeks at the hospital with nary a cough or throat irritation or the least discomfort, and by the way, smoking was prohibited at the hospital but nurse kept my door closed and window open so I enjoyed my smokes to the full extent.

I am just a school teacher in a small town and not setting a good example to my pupils because I smoke, I suppose, but there is certainly "pep" in Lucky Strikes.

Sincerely yours,

J. A. McPherson

FRANK HUSSEY REPORTS FOR B. C. FOOTBALL

Major Frank W. Cavanaugh and his famous system have moved on to Fordham but the grass drill still survives at the Heights. And Daley's calisthenics, the only remainder of the departed "Cav," are more rugged than ever before.

Veterans who have had tastes of both [illegible] Leo Daley's grass drill a wide margin over that of Cavanaugh. The new Eagle mentor has most of Cavy's [illegible] with the addition of some [illegible] and sparring between all the [illegible] lines.

Yet as stiff as the new grass drill appears to be all the rookies without [illegible] the goal. They were all full of pep and devoured their first dose of conditioning medicine without flinching. Tickle Maloney is in charge of [illegible] and barks out the commands while Heaphy, McKennee and Leo Daley watch the squads from all sides to see that none are loafing.

Frank Hussey, Jack Ryder's [illegible] scrimmage was among the reporting candidates. Hussey has been doing some [illegible] during the Summer as [illegible] has kept himself in fine [illegible]. The New York dash man is trying for a berth [illegible].

However, it is not said that Hussey will be with the gridders for long. A shift [illegible] to one of his [illegible] would ruin his future on the gridiron. Hussey will, in all probability, remain with the squad during the conditioning period, and then shift his athletic interest to the track.

Warren McGuirk, veteran tackle for two years, is one of the reasons for Daley's optimism. McGuirk has been slimming a pork and a spud all Summer, and is in A1 condition. He tips the scales at 182 pounds, and is as hard as rock.

McGuirk came from Dorchester High and prepped at St. Anselms. He was one of Major Cavanaugh's best forwards last year and rated with the best in the [illegible] will remember the exploits McGuirk put up against Tex Rodgers of Holy Cross in the [illegible] 1926 games at Boston Field and Fall He should be fighting for an All-American [illegible] with his added [illegible] and experience.

JACK DEMPSEY Tells of Comeback

(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—The finest training quarters I ever have occupied are here at the Lincoln Fields Race Track, where I am the guest of Col. Matt Winn, and his fellow officials in that organization.

The clubhouse where I am parked, is like a new hotel. It is spic and span; it is new and bright; it is modern to the absolute extreme. Everything is here in the way of comfort and luxury, from wonderful bedrooms to an electrically equipped kitchen.

But—and here's something that may sound odd to a lot of people—I feel all out of place in so magnificent a spot while training for a fight. I've never had anything like this; never anything within a thousand miles of this. And I'm having a tough time getting used to this [illegible]

WHEN I trained for Willard in 1919, my quarters were in a ramshackle hotel on the shores of Maumee Bay in Toledo. I guess there was a bathroom in the place, but if there was, it was probably out of commission. The food I got was rough—and tough—and there wasn't anything swanky or swagger about the whole spot.

The downstairs part was, if I remember correctly, a saloon.

When I trained for Make, I had an old fashioned house in Benton Harbor, roomy and comfortable, but that's about all that could be said about it. It was old and looked a bit shaky.

I had a furnished apartment in New York when I trained for Bill Brennan in 1920; one of those places with plenty of hall bedrooms, one or two of which had a window. The place was about as old as I was and I am to get a little well along. I sat in a chair for fear it would [illegible]

In 1921 I trained in Atlantic City and again I had an old house, just [illegible] furnished and just fairly equipped; a house that was on the edge of some swamp.

OUT in Great Falls, Montana, I had my quarters in an old brewery on the outskirts of the town, near the Missouri River; an old building that had a little modern plumbing, one of those "almost" kitchens and not much furniture.

In Saratoga, while training for Firpo, I had a cottage on the main road, one of those Summer things that is good in the Summer time, but which certainly leaked chilly air in the Fall. At Scarsdale in 1927, when training for Sharkey, I had a cottage well away from the road and free looking automobile horns.

And in Atlantic City I had a cottage—the first really modern one I'd ever used, or, rather, had a chance to use.

SO, you see, I was sort of brought up, as nearly all fighters are, in the atmosphere of old houses, and tottering furniture, and poor plumbing and sometimes bum cooking. I became rather used to all that. I took it as part of what a fighter must take when in training.

And now that I'm quartered at a place that rivals the finest hotel in the world in the matter of luxury and equipment—well, I felt awfully out of place to begin with. It seemed as if I didn't belong—not while training.

But gee whiz! I'm getting used to it and if I ever fight again, after this battle, I think I'm afraid I've got a [illegible] and his crowd have given me for this training, will really satisfy.

TWO BILLS READY FOR BATTLE

Tilden and Johnston Meet French Stars Today in Davis Cup Matches

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—It's up to the two Bills again!

After reviewing the ranks of his mighty tennis army, Uncle Sam has selected those two dependable veterans, "Big Bill" Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnston, who wrested the Davis Cup from Australia in 1920 and who have defended it since by the power of their stout right driving arms, to cope with that considerable French invasion which begins on the Germantown turf courts this afternoon.

The [illegible] were officially designated as the United States choice for the singles play. Predictions were likewise [illegible] when Jean Rene Lacoste, victor of the American national title, J. Henri Cochet, winner of Wimbledon, and carries the knight's title were chosen to represent France in the four important singles matches.

The [illegible] have been made a month of the representatives of the contending teams.

For [illegible] of the doubles play [illegible] Tilden and Hunter [illegible] as [illegible] responsible [illegible] America because of their victories at Wimbledon and Brookline, are looked upon as [illegible] to give the United States, who Cochet and Jacques Brugnon are the favorite for the French duties assignment.

Jean Borotra, however, who is not included in the singles play for the first time in France became a real threat, has draw the selection with Borotra.

"Little Bill" Johnston, who has never been in a Davis Cup match against the French, will open the play in the first singles match today. He meets Jean Rene Lacoste, the holder of America's national singles title.

Tilden and Henri Cochet meet in the second singles encounter, which is looking fan, who thinks in terms of "matches of the century," and in the "match of the millennium." It was the rocky little Cochet who defeated Tilden at Forest Hills last year and it was Henri again who downed "Big Bill" comparatively easily in defeating him at Wimbledon this Summer.

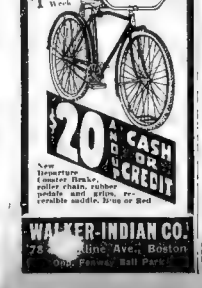
BID $20,000 FOR MANDELL BOUT

With one world champion, Jo[illegible]mbo, secretary of Tilleholder, already secured to do battle before Hub fans, Eddie Mack, matchmaker of the Argonne Club, has opened negotiations here for the appearance of Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ill., world's lightweight champion, to defend his title over Columbus Day against the winner of the bout between Jimmy Dundee and Jack Britton of Baltimore. Dundee and Jack Britton will meet in Baltimore Labor Day night.

Mack offered Mandell $20,000 flat, and is prepared to go as high as $25,000 to come to Boston to meet the victor of next Tuesday night's fight.

Not in ten years has there been such enthusiastic interest in the lightweight division as there is today. The last meeting between Sacco and Barbarian simply took Hub fans by storm. It was the greatest fight ever witnessed in Boston. When it was called that three gladiators stood toe to toe for ten full rounds and punched in such furious fashion.

Eddie Mack predicts that the second ten rounder will prove equally as thrilling. Billy Akers of Phoenix, Ariz., whom Mack says is the greatest club fighter in the country, today comes here to take on Joey Besnop of New York.



"HELLO, Mr. Boston."

The veteran turned quickly and greeted Arthur Crowley, one of Sheriff Keliher's Right Eyes at the Court House and son of Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley.

"What's the latest news on the 'Babe?' queried Mr. Boston who happens to know that Arthur Crowley is the mighty slugger's bosom pal.

"Everything's Jake," shot back Crowley. "Looks as though the big fellow is going to crack his own home run record. I believe that everybody who has seen Ruth do his stuff at Fenway Park this week will agree with me when I say he's at the peak of his batting form.

"I believe Lou Gehrig has been partly responsible for Ruth's sensational batting this year. The Buster has been crowding the Babe and, like a true thoroughbred, the Bambino has put a little more fire into his work. He's thundering down the home stretch in the lead.

"You'll pardon me if I say Babe is the greatest character in sport today. There isn't anything upstage or fancy about the big fellow. The only difference between the Ruth of today and the one who played on the St. Mary's Industrial team in Baltimore is that Babe now has more money.

"I'M going to tip you to something which I know will please you. Ruth is holding on to his dough. A few years ago Ruth was 'broke' despite the fact he had made more than a quarter of a million iron men out of baseball and the sidelines he went in for when he shattered the home run record.

"I think Ruth's sickness a couple of years ago taught him a lesson. He had plenty of time in which to think and reflect as he rested on his cot in St. Vincent's Hospital. He then decided he owed something to Mrs. Ruth, their baby and himself as well as to the gang.

"When Ruth got back into harness, he paid off all of his debts and then started to pile up a money reserve. He first bought for himself an insurance policy which will pay him $50 a week when he reaches the age of 45.

"More recently Ruth stepped into a New York bank and established an irrevocable $50,000 trust fund for the benefit of his family and himself. This will net him $50 a week.

"Ruth is far from being done as a headliner. He has many years of baseball usefulness ahead of him. I wouldn't be surprised if he'll be worth $200,000 by the time he passes out of the big league picture.

"SUCCESS hasn't changed the Babe. He still clings to his old friends. while he likes to shower gifts on those persons who were kind to him in the days before he arrived. There's a brother down at St. Mary's in Baltimore whom Ruth keeps supplied with a high powered auto. He tells me this brother was the one who first told him he could play ball.

"I once dropped in at St. Mary's with Babe. There was a special dinner in honor of the return of the King of Swat. As we sat at the head table, Ruth forgot all about the fact he was the most colorful player in baseball.

"During the dinner, he pointed out the various brothers to me. His remembered earls in connection with some amusing incident which happened at the time Babe was trying to figat his way up

"I THINK if Babe were to open up his heart he could tell of many lonesome hours he experienced when he was a boy. I think in a way certain ways he is always so eager to show at entertainments which are being held for youngsters.

"I remember one time over in New York when it was a question of whether Ruth would attend a meeting of big business men or a show at an Orphan Asylum. His business representative was anxious to please the dough boys.

"'There's nothing to decide,' said the Babe. 'I'm going out to see those kids.'"

Crowley paused.

"There you have the answer as to the popularity of Ruth," said Mr. Boston. "Home runs help, but it is the largeness of heart which has made Babe an idol with the sport fans of America.

"Jack Dempsey, Helen Wills and the rest have their followings but none of them ranks with the Babe for the great human appeal."

48 STATIONS TO BROADCAST BIG BOUT

Chicago, Sept. 8 (A.P.)—Tex Rickard announced today that "the most extensive world-wide broadcast ever attempted" has been arranged for the Tunney-Dempsey fight here September 22.

The National Broadcasting Company has been granted the exclusive right to broadcast the fight to the outside world, Rickard said, under the sponsorship of the Scripps-Howard newspapers. On Setting the Home Luncheon Table

By MARTHA LEE

AN OASIS in the stretch of a long day is a refreshing luncheon, and if it can be made an attractive and anticipated meal for the family at home instead of a rather thrown together affair which everyone hurries to get through with.

The home luncheon is often the most neglected meal of the day because some of the members of the family are usually away from home at noon time and because of this an all too easy opportunity to utilize remnants of the day before that have not been used in the dinner box. They may be used from pants, of course, but the most pleasing use [illegible] they are to be.

First let us set the table for our home luncheon in the most correct and attractive way. Either a colorful luncheon cloth or a doily set may be used. The centre fold of the cloth must form a true line through the centre—a centre-piece—a bowl of pretty artificial flowers is placed exactly in the centre of the table.

Lay the covers on opposite sides of the table directly opposite each other. Place the service plate, which is laid for each person, an inch from the edge of the table. Next lay the silver, which should always be used beginning at the outside and using toward the plate.

The style of course, is to be placed at the right of the plate handle in from the edge of the table with the cutting edge toward the plate. Place the spoon with the bowl facing up at the right of the [illegible] with the tines turned upward at the left of the plate, and the napkin, perfectly flat and squarely folded, at the left of the forks.

The water glass should be at the point of the knife, the bread and butter plate above the service plate a little to the left; and the butter spreader across the upper right-hand side of the bread-and-butter plate.

The table laid, the chairs are placed. They should be not too near the table, neither entirely away from it, but where they can be used with slight assertion.

Here is a suggestion for a well balanced, quickly prepared and inexpensive luncheon that will [illegible] from the day's dinner:

Cream of Tomato Soup Croutons
Omelet with Vegetables
Whole Wheat Bread and Butter
Peaches Lady Fingers
Tea

For an excellent cream of tomato soup, add the contents of a can of tomato soup to the same quantity of milk. Stir while heating and allow it to simmer gently for a few minutes, stirring constantly. Add a dash of paprika and serve with croutons.

If there is some whipped cream left over in the ice box merely add it to the tomato soup, instead of milk and top with a spoonful of whipped cream on each serving.

A delightful vegetable omelet will utilize any remaining vegetables left from the night before, such as peas, tomatoes, lima beans, asparagus or spinach, adding them just as the omelet is ready to fold. Bits of cooked chicken, veal or ham may be also added.

An attractive way to serve the peaches and ladyfingers for dessert will be to line a sherbet glass with the lady fingers and then place the peaches with their juice in the centre. And, if you like, top with whipped cream and a maraschino cherry.

An enjoyable luncheon of this sort gives the afternoon a rosy aspect, instead of leaving it merely a tiresome part of the day when breakfast is far behind and dinner far in the distance.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

No eggs! No oil!

HERE'S a fine example of that old saying—but very rare—combination—a recipe which makes a dish more delicious and at the same time makes it less expensive. It's a most tempting salad dressing—unusually rich and smooth—yet it requires no eggs and no oil. That is because Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk is used.

Salad Dressing

1½ cups Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk
½ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon salt

Into the milk beat the vinegar, then the seasonings. Allow to stand a few minutes until it stiffens.

Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk has a place all its own in cooking. It is really two ingredients in one—pure, fresh, full-cream country milk, blended with finest sugar. It is more than twice as rich as bottled milk, because most of the water has been removed. And it is far smoother than any mixture you could make at home, because of the special process by which the sugar is blended in. This extra richness and smoothness makes Standard Milk the best milk to use wherever recipe calls for both milk and sugar.

Keep Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk on hand. Use it for desserts, hot breads, icings, candies, ice cream, etc. . . And by all means, use it in your coffee! At one-half the cost of separate cream and sugar, it gives coffee wonderful golden richness and mellow flavor.

Get Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk from your grocer today!

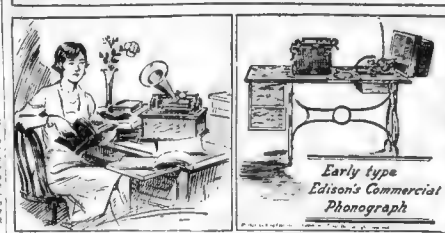
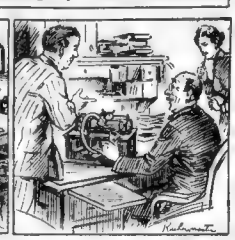
LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



Early type Edison's Commercial Phonograph



In 1878 Edison predicted that the phonograph would be used for "the preservation of languages by exact reproduction of pronouncing," and "preserving the explanations made by a teacher." He was right. For many years the phonograph has been used in language teaching.

Originally, Edison thought that the principal use for the phonograph would be in letter writing and all kinds of dictation without the aid of a stenographer." Here we see a drawing of Edison's commercial phonograph of 1897, the forerunner of the modern dictating machine.

Early attempts to popularize the phonograph for commercial purposes failed principally because the instruments were not well understood and did not possess the refinements necessary for office use. However, some firms were induced to try them, as shown above Time, 1900

For many years the chief objections to machine dictation came from secretaries who thought that if the "bosses" bought dictating machines there would soon be a drastic cut in salaries. Like many another unfounded fear this has disappeared.

ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

Author of "THE TAXI DANCER"

A Story of Sylvia Bryant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

CHAPTER 39

LIGGETT'S hands opened and shut nervously. Sylvia, listening, felt all her nerves tighten like thin, taut wires.

Alexander Ladd's calmness was cold, brutal. "I'll give you a chance to confess, and escape. I won't have you killed unless I have to. You're not ready to die, I judge—after all, you're a coward, Liggett, and you can't face death, for yourself. Bribery is the way to reach you. You need money, don't you?"

Liggett admitted that he was practically without funds.

"All right. Write out a complete confession in your own handwriting. Give your motives—everything. Clear up the faze alibi. I'll give you twenty-five thousand dollars in cold cash. A disguise won't be difficult. I'll play fair with you—you know that."

"I know that," Liggett repeated stonily.

"I'll give you your start and your money—and then hand your confession to the police. More, I'll tell them you gave it to me not an hour before—I'll make it appear I am trying to aid your capture. I have no compunction whatever in double-crossing them. Sending you to the chair wouldn't help poor old Vance Ackerman anyway. You'll probably kill yourself with drink sooner than the law would with electricity."

Sylvia was blank with amazement. The utterly calousness of Alexander Ladd left her dazed . . . this fact that he could threaten so wickedly, with such conviction, made her feel weak as water in his presence.

He was agreeing to spend twenty-five thousand dollars of his money on her, a gigantic sum that he mentioned with ease. But he was not spending it on her—the price was out of all proportion to any value of their association. Not for Sylvia Bryant, exclusively, was he sacrificing such a fortune—it was to satisfy his own ego, to make good on a proud promise.

She was moved to protest. "I couldn't repay you all that money in the longest day I live," she said rather lamely.

"I lost that much on the Kenley Derby last year," Ladd returned, without feeling." The stock exchange isn't exactly noted for its quixotic principles, either."

Liggett drew his hand across a twisted mouth. "I wasn't myself—I was drunk. I've been drunk for a year."

Without moving his head Alexander Ladd raised his voice.

"Bernard!"

A door opened, bulky shoulders and a dark, scowling face appeared but did not enter.

"Take Mr. Liggett into my study—the room with the desk. He's going to write out a long document. Oh, yes, Liggett, be sure and put some inksmear finger prints opposite your signature. They correspond with the prints the army took of its soldiers. We've got to make this thing authentic."

A flash of Jack Liggett's bravado began to come back.

"I can do business with a man like you, Ladd. You're like I am—brazen."

This, Ladd ignored; he turned to Sylvia as Liggett left the room.

"As soon as Liggett finishes his confession I am going to release him Tomorrow night at this hour I shall deliver his confession to the police. But before that time they may decide to take you in charge. Of course, as soon as they get his confession you'll be in the clear—but until then—you'll have to disappear."

He looked at her as impersonally as though she were a pawn in a chess game. The last remaining urge in Sylvia to resist his dictates had been obliterated.

"I will do what you say."

"Good! After tomorrow you can do as you please because you will be free of all suspicion. What I want to do in the next few hours is to save you from even the taint of a few hours of temporary arrest. I want to make a clean job of it. For a little—until tomorrow night—you will be a fugitive. I'd rather you didn't go home tonight.

"I could stay with Mary—"

"For several reasons," he agreed. "No doubt a detective is waiting to trail you home. But it's easy to beat them. You do not need to leave the building. Mr. Harry Harlan's apartment two floors above is unoccupied. He is your friend Peach and has left a spare key with me. You wouldn't be afraid to stay there alone, would you."

"No. But my mother and father would be worried to death—"

"I can't yet—phone them and say you are staying all night with a girl friend. You do that sometimes, don't you?"

"I used to—with Mary Thompson and her sister."

"All right. Say you're going to spend the night with Mary Thompson. Phone again in the morning, and say you are going to spend the day, say, looking for a new job. That's plausible—they'll believe you won't they?"

"Of course they will."

"Then that's settled," Ladd said relieved. "Harlan's place has a private phone, which you needn't hesitate to use."

He produced a key ring and took off a flat key.

"It's silly to try to thank you," he said.

"It's all the other way," he told her. "I got you into this and I had to get you out. That's all.

Jack Liggett came back to the room, several sheets of paper in his hand.

"There it is—short and sweet," he said. "I'll take my money and go."

Sylvia watched Ladd as he read the confession. He was clad in a dark, splendidly tailored suit; in concentration, his face was handsome, firmly acquiline.

"Fine. I was wondering about that alibi, Liggett. Your neighbors didn't hear you playing the phonograph. It was a portable radio set you had left going. And you carried it up the fireescape and had it on the roof as soon as you got home. And the hotel clerk—he was drowsy with drink and didn't know whether you were really in or out. Simple, wasn't it?"

Ladd went into another room and returned with a packet of currency. "Count it." He tossed it toward Liggett on a table. The sum of Vance Ackerman ran through the money with nervous fingers. "Correct. Goodby, Ladd—you'll never see me again. It wasn't Margot Arden as it was the footch."

He swaggered out. Ladd lit a cigarette. "Well, I'm a criminal now, he said. "I've helped a murderer escape."

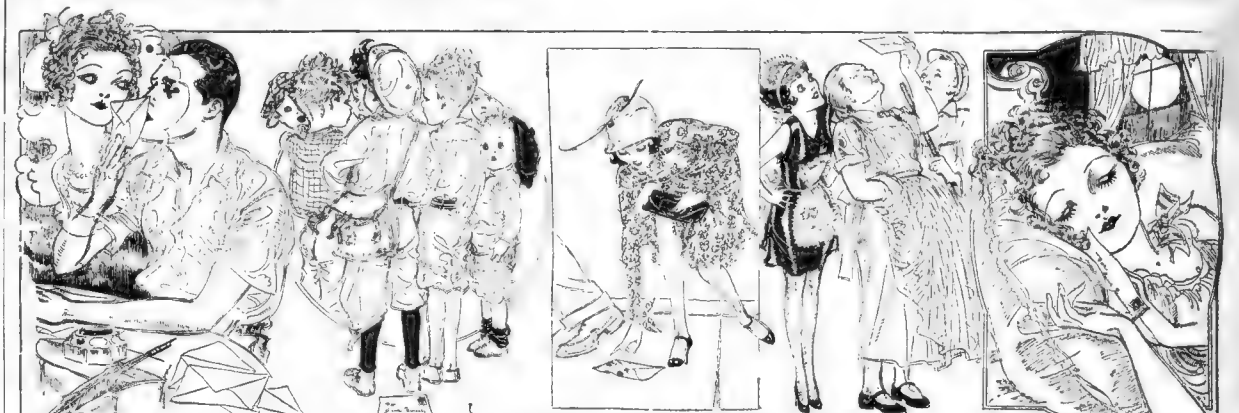
"The Adventures of a Love Letter"

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley



IT IS WRITTEN AND SEALED PROPERLY!
IT GOES ASTRAY.
IS PUT ON ITS WAY BY A DEVOTEE OF LOVE.
IS BETRAYED!
AND COMES SAFE TO THE HAVEN OF HER HEART AT LAST!

ANXIOUSLY you watch up the street under the green branches of the trees for the grey uniform of the postman. And when at last he swings into your gate and his whistle thrills at the door, and you fly to meet him with a fire like a beacon in your eyes, it matters little to him how the game lives. It nestles for a while in the purse of a pretty girl whose bright eyes rescue it from passing brogues—knowing it did she? for a love-letter?

It was stamped and mailed and jostled the other letters of the town. And at last in the lower floor it was X-rayed by eager eyes

And home it came at last—like a wave-weary little ship—to the haven of a girlish breast!—NELL BRINKLEY.

"Where's Emily?"; Stone Hurries Away to Investigate New Clue

man that is responsible for her abduction."

"You can do it?" asked Pete, not doubtfully, but greatly interested.

"I can do it," returned Fleming Stone, so positively that they were all impressed.

The first part of the night there was nothing to be done, but a little after midnight the patient grew restless, and the night nurse called Doctor Eaton.

By the time he reached her bedside, Emily was screaming, in an attack of acute hysteria. He quickly administered a sedative, and its effect was slow, and the girl went through a series of alternate rigidity and convulsive movements, until the nurses began to fear the end was near.

"No" Doctor Eaton said, "these symptoms are to be expected. She will have more of them. But they are physical If we can keep her mentality, we can pull her through physically, I feel sure. The trouble will come when she wakes to consciousness. On no account question her, or say anything definite of any nature. Should she become rational when I am not here, just soothe her, and murmur words of general comfort. Tell her everything is all right, and for her to go to sleep. Probably she will obey, but call me in any hour."

After the doctor's ministrations, Emily sank into a heavy slumber.

Dr. Eaton left the sick room with a heavy heart. His diagnosis, corroborated by his confreres, was that the whole illness of Lindy was the result of shock by some frightening occurrence or series of occurrences. The latter, most likely, for one shock, however great, could scarcely reduce a strong healthy girl to this pitiable, trembling wreck of humanity.

But the doctors all agreed there was nothing to be done but wait, and let nature do all it could by itself in a recuperating way.

Emily took the nourishment they offered, and swallowed milk or broth, naturally and with no unwillingness. This led to a more assured opinion that physically there was little the matter with her.

But when the sedative effect wore off and consciousness began to return, there came about the terrible spells of hysteria and apparent dementia.

About dawn, Emily had one of those attacks and became so violent that they were obliged to restrain her by force.

"I must get out of the window," she cried, not loudly, but with a low, piteous moan. "I must get out of the window!"

"Yes, dear," soothed the nurse, "yes, you shall get out of the window. Just wait till afternoon. Take a little nap first."

And as receptive was Emily's disordered brain, that she obeyed, and went to sleep as suggested.

Then, in a moment she was wild again. Tossing her restless head and throwing her arms about

Patiently the nurse soothed her, and tried to calm her. Sometimes the efforts were successful sometimes not, but the nurses frequently relieved, were indefatigable and persistent in their determination to do their part toward the recovery of Emily Duane.

Not only was it a celebrated case, as well as the most important and interesting case the hospital had ever had in its brief career, but they all loved Emily, they all admired Rodney, and they outvied one another in their work of rescue.

At 7 o'clock, when Emily chanced to be quiet, a nurse took occasion to tell Rodney, who called "Good night and Mona Duane today. Perhaps not for several days."

"But she's getting better? She is doing all right?" begged Rodney, and the nurse was moved to give him some details.

"Yes," she said, picking her words carefully, "she's doing all the doctors expect or hope for at present. They want to build her up physically before she is questioned or even spoken to."

"Has she said anything at all?"

"Nothing coherent. I was with her about 3 or 4 o'clock, when she woke suddenly, and seemed to want to talk. I didn't discourage her exactly and she tried hard to say something. But she couldn't get the words right. Then she waved her arms about and said, thickly, 'Can't, can't—get pen—' So I offered her a pencil and paper pad. But she only stared at me and said, 'No, no—get pen,' so I said, 'yes, dear, tomorrow we'll get a pen for you,' and she smiled almost rationally and dropped off to sleep like a lamb."

Rodney listened, glad to hear any details, and then he said

"Thank you, nurse. It's pain to be seen she wants to tell of her experiences but she can't command her speech yet."

Sayre went back to the house greatly heartened by his talk with the nurse. It brought Lindy nearer to him to hear these details of what she was doing and saying. Had he known the real truth of her terrible plight, he would have felt less secure of her ultimate recovery.

At the breakfast table all tried to be cheerful and hopeful Aunt Judy was frankly jubilant over Emily's return, and was sure that she would soon be her own self again

Pete was worrying about the police He hadn't mentioned it, but he felt sure the moment Emily was well enough they would arrest her for Polly Pennington's murder.

Emily arrested for murder! The idea was so absurd as to seem impossible, but Pete knew how cleverly Lawlor believed in the girl's guilt and whatever the outcome might be, it would mean a lot of trouble and publicity.

Betty was a little downcast, for she had had a relative who lost his mind through the effects of shock, and she secretly feared for Emily.

Fleming Stone, pleasant and kindly, as always, was abstracted and thoughtful

He roused to sharp attention when Rodney related what the nurse had told him

For Sayre, so pleased himself to hear details of his darling's doings wanted to pass the story on, to interest Aunt Judy and Betty.

But of these all, Stone showed the deepest interest

"Tell that again, Sayre," he said, excitedly. "Tell it exactly as the nurse told it to you."

Nothing loath, Rodney repeated it all, being careful to quote the exact words of the nurse

"I shall have to go right to New York," Stone said, as they rose from the table. "Pete, you keep an eye and ear for anything that may happen (of course, nobody can question Emily or even see her for a time, but get from the nurses and record of anything she says or does. It may mean everything in our search for the villain. Possibly, but Pete knew how anxiously Lawlor hoped to get to the hospital before the train, for there may be a new clue there."

Stone hurried off and they were wondering what had given him the new impetus, they could scarcely think it was Emily's suggestion of seeing what she could not say.

And yet it was.

WOMEN APPROACHING MIDDLE AGE

Pass Through This Trying Period in Good Condition by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. HARVEY TUCKER
R. R. 9 SHELBYVILLE IND.

"Grow old along with me, The best is yet to be"

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Those who have learned through their own experience the merit of this dependable medicine are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

"I had been in bad condition for three months. I could not do my work. One day I read what your medicine had done and just had a feeling that it would help me, so I went and got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had only taken half a bottle when I got up and started to do my work. It gave me an appetite, and helped me wonderfully. I can not praise this medicine highly enough. I surely will advise all women and girls to take it, and they don't have to use rouge to look healthy. My two daughters are taking it now and one is also using the Sanative Wash. I am willing to have you use this testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the medicine."—Mrs. Harvey Tucker, R. R. No. 9, Shelbyville, Indiana.

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. Jennie Bollzaman, 511-11th St., Union City, No. 2.

Correct Manners

By MRS CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please answer the following questions regarding a wedding to be held at 7:30 p. m. in a hotel?

1—What is the usual procession of the bridal party?

2—Is it necessary to have ushers for the bridesmaids?

3—How many bridesmaids does one usually have?

4—Who pays for the bridesmaids' bouquets?

5—What is the correct outfit for the bride and groom?

6—Is is necessary to have flower girls and a ring bearer?

7—Can the bridesmaids wear white?

8—Must the attendants wear full-dress suits? S. G.

USHERS first, two by two. Then bridesmaids, two by two Maid of honor or matron of honor, with best man. Then bride and her father.

2—No. Nowadays ushers and bridesmaids do not walk together, either in the processional or the recessional. Neither does the maid of honor walk with the best man, for he does not take part in either the processional or the recessional.

3—There is no definite number of bridesmaids that is correct. There may be none, or two or four or six or eight. There should be an even number, since they walk together.

4—Usually the parents of the bride provide the bridesmaids' bouquets.

5—White dress and wedding veil for the bride, and full dress for the groom.

6—No, it is not necessary to have flower girls and a ring bearer. Indeed the usual wedding now does not have these attendants

7—Bridesmaids may wear white, if the bride wishes, and it is being worn more and more. However, the colors of the bridesmaids' dresses form a charming background for the white of the bride's dress

8—Yes, the gentlemen at an evening wedding, shutter of the wedding party or the guests, wear full dress out of compliment to the important occasion

Yesterday we left the Baron fumbling with his Australian horse hair watch chain and rousing from heel to toe as Maurine leped the reasons why she did not choose to be his bride in 1931.

Every time the Baron tried to speak Maurine would silence him with smelling salts and then go on reading from her prepared speech on this fashion—

"Nor will I take the sin upon my soul
Of wedding where my heart goes not in whole
However bleak may be my single lot,
I will not stain my life with such a blot,
Dear friend, farewell! the earth is very wide.
It holds some fairer woman for your bride;
I would I had a heart to give to you,
But, lacking it, can only say—adieu."

Then Maurine bowed, sniffled, blew her nose, and sat down. She was crying softly. The Baron tried to comfort her by sliding on her lap, but she finally managed to dislodge him, and the senile old fool slithered to the floor with a thud. And there let us leave him until tomorrow.

GOOD TIME GUY

Again, Not at Home

By Frank Smiley

I BELIEVE IN CAROLINE --- ANYTHING ELSE WOULD BE BEYOND BELIEF! BUT JUST THE SAME, I'LL CALL HER UP AND MAKE SURE SHE DOESN'T FORGET TO PAY ME, SATURDAY!
NO, AS I'VE TOLD YOU, MRS. COOKEY ISN'T HOME --- SHE'S OUT OF TOWN --- I'LL LET YOU SPEAK TO MR. SCROGGINS.
YOU SPEAK TO HIM --- I'M GLAD I CAUGHT HIS VOICE BEFORE HE CAUGHT ME!
IF YOU CALLED ABOUT YOUR NOTE, IT'S STILL DUE ON SATURDAY --- AND AT ONE MINUTE AFTER MIDNIGHT, BUT AS A SPECIAL FAVOR TO YOU, I'LL GIVE YOU A CHANCE TO FORECLOSE ON YOUR BREAKFAST BEFORE THAT GOES PAST MATURITY, TOO! HEH-HEH!
THE WOLF IS AT GUY'S DOOR WITH GLEAMING TEETH --- AND GUY THINKS IT'S ONLY A DENTAL AD!

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHENEVER I see a brilliant, capable, successful woman about to marry a nice, normal, efficient he-man, I close my eyes and shudder.

• • •

Because I know that one of two tragedies is bound to happen.

Either she is going to begin softening his backbone, vertebra by vertebra, by lifting all the responsibilities off of it.

Or, when the irresistible force of her ambition meets the immovable body of his masculine will and self-respect, there is going to be a terrible cataclysm. With broken hopes, shattered dreams and all sorts of wreckage in its wake.

A lot of women are born capable and efficient, and a lot of men are born sweet and beautiful and timid and spineless—and these make perfect mates.

Of course, it is painful to envision a strong, fine, intelligent woman gazing tenderly down into the eyes of a sweet, adoring man and calling him her dear little helpmate. But, after all, if a woman MUST have a career, and holds the reins, why shouldn't she be satisfied with a "second" as a husband?

That is much fairer than taking a potentially fine, upstanding man and insidiously ruining him by making life too soft and easy for him. For, next to canned lobster, nothing on earth is so easily SPOILED as a man! Take him off the ice of hard work and put him in the sun of ease and contentment, and he becomes soft and impossible in no time.

Love of hard work is something that the Lord put into awfully few men, and it is only the thought of some tender, helpless little god-digger, waiting for him to bring home the bacon, the Rolls-Royces and the pearl necklaces that keeps the average man working at all, and spurs him on to achievement.

On the other hand, the Lord DID make a lot of ineffectual weaklings and Do-littles; and SOMEBODY has got to take care of them. So why doesn't the brave bold girl with the strong arm just accept one of these and keep him for a PET?

Of course, nature is nature! And no matter how capable and successful a woman may be, she is still a WOMAN, and dimples and lungs for a capable, efficient he-man mate.

• • •

She may THINK that she is satisfied with ambition and work and her own latch-key. But all the time her heart is crying out for love and babies and a big, strong shoulder to lean on. She may despise a go-getter, but secretly she gets a lot more thrill out of having some man "give her things" than she does out of buying them for herself.

• • •

But you can't have EVERYTHING in this world. And a career and matrimony are the oil and water that won't mix. To a successful woman, a husband can be only an after-thought or a background—and that's what she ought to be content with.

• • •

It's a rare woman who can be a hundred per cent. business success and a hundred per cent. wife at the same time. And if you can't be an ideal wife, why demand an ideal husband? You won't get one, anyway!

Red itching blisters on baby's face healed by Resinol

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 19:—"My baby had eczema for three months and nothing seemed to do him any good until I tried your products. His cheeks were red and covered with blisters, and the itching was so annoying that he could not sleep.

After reading your ad in the paper I purchased a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. Only a few applications stopped the itching entirely and within a week the redness was gone and his skin practically clear. Your ointment is really wonderful and I will praise it to everyone." MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

SEVERAL lofty ladies have gotten together and formed an obesity club. They've resolved to get thin if they have to stop eating between meals.

ONE woman objects to being called stout. She's just a well upholstered girl from Davenport.

BUT her husband claims she's overstuffed.

SHE weighs 240 pounds in her stocking feet.

SHE got on a carousel the other day and three of the wooden horses fainted.

SHE was so heavy she blew the fuses out of the merry-go-round.

IF she were any larger, her husband could be arrested for bigamy.

AS it is now he's practically married to two women.

SHE used to work for Ringling Brothers' circus and wore one of their tents for a wedding gown.

SHE wanted to motor to the coast last Summer and they had to make the trip in a truck.

THEY bought a moving van for a pleasure car.

THE first time she got in a fight with her husband she hit him on the jaw so hard she broke his ankle.

HE says she's so fleshy that whenever he sticks a pin in her it's fifteen minues before she hollers "ouch."

SHE has two chins and keeps both of them going at the same time.

WHILE one is resting, the other one is talking.

A MOSQUITO lit on her Adam's apple the other evening. He didn't intend to bite her, he just got on for the ride.

THE average woman is so anxious to become slender that she'll try everything she can think of except giving up her meals.

OBESITY is contagious and most women catch it in the dining-room.

CHORE BOY IS NEW HEAD OF GREAT OIL

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Every once in a while someone sagely remarks that America is the land of opportunity. Every once in a while something happens to prove it. The latest event is the selection of C. G. Black as head of the $200,000,000 Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, the largest of the Rockefeller units. President Black earned but first money 45 years ago as a chore boy, chiefly employed in cutting and bending wires to make handles for oil cans. He was then 14. Another example of the fact that a college training, although undisputably helpful, is not essential for winning the way to the seats of the mighty.

President Charles L. Edgar of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston, with a record of more than 40 years as an executive of the company, is closely rivaled by First Vice President Walter C. Baylies, one of our most prominent capitalists. Mr. Baylies has served directors of service with Boston Edison. Not many concerns can boast of such long-term executives.

A good many people apparently do not know Uncle Sam's annual tax rate means, several town and city collectors have told me, approving the recent editorial suggestion in this newspaper that the public generally take pains to acquaint itself more thoroughly with municipal finances. In Quincy I could not help overhearing two ladies discussing a 40-cent tax rate reduction. "Does that mean 40 cents on the dollar?" asked one. "Yes, the rate is cut 40 cents on the dollar," replied the questioned fair one.

"My papa drives in a car that cost $4,000," announced one little Quincy girl. "And mine drives one that cost $15,000," remarked her companion, whose daddy is president of one of the de luxe carriers on the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway.

Wright has not all the field to itself in the manufacture of airplane engines. One of its best-known rivals is Continental Motors Corporation, listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Instead of citing alone with the oceanic flights, the stock of this company has dropped from its high for the year until it is as I write only fractionally above its low. W. E. Angell, executive vice-president of Continental, has just come back from two months in Europe. His concern is the largest manufacturer of gasoline engines, exclusively, in the United States.

When Chauncey M. Depew visited a Peekskill, N. Y., savings bank he was told the first $100 he had saved and deposited there in 1861 when he was 17, had grown to $1100. It is not many who at 93, like Mr. Depew, can boast of having thus saved their initial nest egg. I am informed that only three per cent of savings accounts survive for 10 years.

Cotton Is Lower

New York, Sept. 8.—Cotton prices were lower today, down 3 to 8 points. October sold at 22.40, down .08; December 22.75, down .04, and January 22.78, down .02.

Britain on the Decline, Says Forbes, After Visit

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Britain is on the downgrade. That is the conviction begotten by a tour through England and Scotland, and by much intimate mingling with the common folks.

TO BRITAIN belonged last century. To the United States will belong this century.

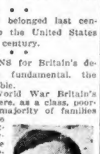
THE REASONS for Britain's decline are fundamental. the causes inescapable.

Before the World War Britain's wage-earners were, as a class, superbly paid. The majority of families were finding the struggle for existence very tryingly hard. Indeed, the present-day generation of factory and other industrial toilers suggests a unique race; it is unusual to see six or seven children among "factory hands" as they are often called.

The war caused wages to rise sharply. Since then attempts to enforce sharp reductions have been fiercely fought. The outcome has been the intense bitterness so frequently expressed violently by Labor's Members of Parliament; by the strikes in the coal and cotton industries; by the ineffective general strike, and in some instances Labor has won, in some instances it has lost the fight for a larger share of the "Kitty."



B. C. Forbes

The net result, however, both in industry and agriculture has been to make operations, as a rule, less profitable than formerly.

BRITAIN'S national overhead, meaning its cost of government plus its interest on war debts, is positively crushing. Industry and business carry probably the heaviest load of the kind in the world, municipal taxes and also painfully onerous income tax exactions.

One of the saddest sights as you travel through the United Kingdom is the miserable destruction of beautiful woods, most of them regarded as sacred in pre-war times. Titled and other landlords all over the country find themselves compelled to ruin wooded scenery in order to raise money by marketing the timber, an exhibition seldom or never resorted to in the old days.

THE ATTITUDE of Britain's wage earners towards their work and towards their employers rarely compares favorably with that usually prevalent in the United States. Initiative, enterprise, ambition, loyalty, are lamentably scarce. There is sadly lacking that determination, so common in America, to rise above the lowest ranks.

Pleasure — perfectly natural — is now pursued on a more general scale since the workers gained a new conception of their importance in the scheme of things by the part they played in the Nation's struggle for self-preservation. Everywhere the attitude of workers now suggests the proud declaration of Scotland's national poet, "A Man's a Man for A' That." There is distinctly less bending of the knee to "the gentry."

THEN, of course, Britain is less happily circumstanced than America in the vitally important matter of mass production. In most directions things are still done there on a relatively small scale. Also, Britain is far behind this country in respect to labor-saving machinery and devices. Many industries claim that they are too poor to find the money necessary to scrap the old and install the new.

Farms are being deserted as never before by the more progressive young men, including farmers' sons—the sons of the largest farmer in my native section asked a few weeks ago to an oil job in the Far East, not thinking it worth while to stay at home and follow in his father's footsteps.

OTHER impressions will follow.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE ☆ ☆ BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN ☆ ☆ BOSTON SEPTEMBER 8, 1927

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parkin problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Between 5 and 6 P. M.

And Throughout the Months of September, October and November, SAFETY ALWAYS!

The worst month of the year, considered in connection with the appalling number of deaths in automobile accidents, is OCTOBER.

The worst hour of the DAY is that between 5 and 6 p. m. October is the worst MONTH for a number of reasons.

People living in daylight saving territory will have gone back to standard time. There are likely to be heavy rains. Roadways will be covered with fallen leaves.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock in the early evening, city streets and sidewalks are crowded by people hurrying home from labor, from a day in the stores or an afternoon in the theatre. They are not brisk, spry and quick-thinking, as they were in the early morning, but in many cases may be weary, jaded, "ready to drop."

Those whose duty it is to keep tabs on such things lump September, October and November together as the WORST THREE months of the year. They place October all by itself as THE worst.

If you would live a little longer, these will be helpful facts to keep in mind.

Many other helpful facts will be brought to your attention in the course of the Safety Campaign which the Boston Automobile Club will conduct in the two weeks beginning next Monday.

Allied with the Automobile Club will be the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Massachusetts Safety Council, the Mayor of Boston's safety committee and the Governor's Committee on Street and Highway Safety.

A great variety of means will be employed in this campaign to impress upon the public mind the wisdom of being careful always, but PARTICULARLY careful in the three "bad" months.

The clergy, always enlisted when man is in danger, will call attention to the campaign from the pulpit and explain the necessity for it.

Teachers in the schools will present the situation to pupils of all ages.

State and city police will help and in hundreds of service stations motorists may have brakes, lights and steering gear tested free of charge.

A formidable program but warranted by the facts.

And what are the facts?

ONE is that more deaths have been caused by automobiles in the last two years in the United States than occurred in action among the American troops in the World War.

Another is that there are four times the number of deaths from automobile accidents in this country than there are from typhoid.

The average DAILY toll is SIXTY-TWO lives.

Last year, the number of CHILDREN sacrificed was 7,000.

In the year 1925, the TOTAL number of automobile deaths in the United States was 22,500.

Here in Massachusetts, the record has begun to show improvement, thanks in very large part to the vigilance of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles and his subordinates.

The number of licenses and registrations taken away from residents of the Bay State last month was 3,872.

There is food for serious thought in the fact that 452 drivers were removed from the roads for operating their cars while under the influence of alleged liquor.

Almost equally appalling is the fact that in a single week 213 drivers were ordered from the highway because of the POOR EQUIPMENT OF THEIR CARS.

Automobiles seldom wreck themselves. A large proportion of all accidents are caused by (1) inattention or (2) failure, neglect or refusal to grant right of way. Some varieties of accident CAN be prevented. The Safety Campaign will identify these and tell how to avoid them.

No campaign can be a REAL success, however, regardless of the number of organizations and able men who take part in it, unless it attracts the interest and enlists the support of the people in general.

How is that public interest to be aroused?

It MAY help to direct attention to the fact that in the two years 1926-26 the number of automobile DEATHS in Massachusetts was 822.

Are not these figures impressive?

They will be MORE impressive, perhaps, if they are compared with the population of certain Massachusetts towns: Brewster, 783; Mashpee, 263; Truro, 663; Boxford, 714; Burlington, 885; Carlisle, 490; Halifax, 638.

When in two years the number of persons killed by the automobile in Massachusetts is equivalent to the population of an entire township it ought not to be difficult to enroll the community in a SAFETY campaign.

Ah, Me!

Science Rules Whiskey Won't Cure Snakebite

Science has knocked another pet theory into what President Wilson would have called a "cocked hat." Science is always doing just that—ruining our pet illusions. Now it has declared that whiskey is not a cure for snakebite—one of the oldest and most popular American theories.

They tell of drug stores keeping snakes to bite the customers and the poor snakes working themselves to death. Dr. Schnidt, curator of reptiles at the Field Museum in Chicago, says the only cases in which whiskey has ever cured snakebite has been when the snakes have been non-poisonous.

Popping

In the 3,600,000 communications which have come to Lindy since he flew are many thousand invitations to marriage.

Once in debate was the question, "Shall women propose?" Evidently it has ceased to be a question. They are popping it.

CURIOSITIES IN THE NEWS OF THE DAY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MOST people are familiar with the classical remark of the newspaper man that if a dog bites a man that is no news, but if a man bites a dog that is news.

This illustrates the fact that news means something remarkable or something that attracts attention.

Along with the front page items of big events there is a fringe constantly of curious news items which we find in the papers.

During the past few weeks I have collected some of these, as follows:

Here is one of a trained flea with a gold collar who escaped from its owner in Santa Cruz, California.

A curious stunt by seekers of publicity recently has been sitting on top of flagpoles. A number of people have sat on poles for days at a time in an effort to establish a pole-sitting record. Absurdity could hardly go further than this.

Here is an account of a band made up entirely of saxophone players which has been having a field day with a concert of 800 saxophones.

Then there is an item of a man who arranged his fishing lines so that when he got a bite they would ring a telephone. This is the first instance apparently of a man fishing by telephone.

Into a barber shop at Junction City, Kansas, there came four women representing four generations from great-grandmother down and got their hair bobbed. That also was found worthy of a place in the newspaper.

A controversy has been waged about President Coolidge catching fish with worms and we are agreeably informed that Mr. Hoover, who is an expert angler, decides that he will not enter into the controversy as to the advisability of this practice. We should think he wouldn't.

A boy falls down a well in Tucson, Arizona, and is not rescued until after five days when he is removed from the shaft in a delirious condition.

A young married couple in Salt Lake City were bathing when their raft which they used was suddenly blown away into the water by a squall.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WHAT is the gift that you first would choose, could you take one and the rest refuse? Out of life's limitless bright array what would you welcome most gladly, say? Would it be honors and pride of place, hope of a name which would thrill the race? Would it be wealth matching Midas' stores?

What would you ask, if the choice were yours? Out of the bounteous blessings of Earth what do I hold as of greatest worth? What would I choose, could I shape the plan? Only the power to say: "I can" Only the pride of the soul that knows something of force from its being flows. This is the spirit's chief talisman, strength of the will as it says "I can."

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

NOW we know where all the horses are. We met them on the road to Cape Cod. For a State highway which is usually thought of for automobiles only, we thought we had driven into the horse reservation at times.

Other signs of animal life or rather death were also present. Scarcely a mile of the road but what had a squirrel, cat, hen or other small animal, flat ironed out by some heavy speeding car.

* * *

Down on the Cape we saw cows. But on the way down we saw many huge Boston milk trucks. One such truck was loaded with milk from northern Vermont. After travelling to Boston, some of it is shipped to the Cape. And people who have babies there may put some in a thermos bottle and carry it back to Boston or elsewhere.

We walked into a huge chain grocery warehouse in Boston. At the manager's desk was a salesman with several cans of tomatoes. These the manager had to sample from a spoon. Ten minutes later he had purchased 10,000 cans for a sale.

In back of the warehouse is a railway siding. A traffic officer is needed to keep the freight cars moving rapidly. As soon as a carload of canned tomatoes is delivered, the next freight car comes up jammed with barrels of pickles. So it goes, freight car loads in the back door, truck loads out the front door.

Found—one man who still cries for more rain. He is X. H. GOODNOUGH, director and chief engineer of the division of sanitary engineering, State department of public health. "All this rain we have gotten has meant only about an additional foot at Wachusett," Goodnough declared. "We can stand a lot more of it."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

DOROTHY CANFIELD says a beautiful thing in her story, "Soldiers' Graves," published recently.

A little boy has been sent to put a flag on a soldier's grave. He does not know what Memorial Day means. To him it is only a holiday—a time for bands and picnics and best neckties. Nor does he know the terrible significance of that broken acre beneath his innocent young feet. He only knows that he has been told to put a flag on A Place marked G. A. R.

"He looked carefully at the standard to make sure it was the right one. The metal was so rusted that the letters were almost illegible, but he thought he could see G. A. R. Were those the letters he had been told to look for? He tried to remember. He had no idea what they meant. OLDER PEOPLE ALWAYS TAKE FOR GRANTED THAT CHILDREN KNOW. BUT LITTLE CHILDREN ARE ALWAYS NEW. THEY ARE NOT BORN WITH ANY KNOWLEDGE OF WHAT OLDER PEOPLE HAVE LIVED WITH."

Little children are always new—

How often do you remember that?

You love children. You like to read poetry about them. You bend over their cribs when they sleep and say that they look like little angels. But how often, in your daily rush, do you stop to consider that they really are wandering angels, or to deal patiently with their strangeness in this difficult world to which you have grown accustomed?

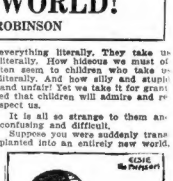
Have you ever realized that children are meeting everything for the first time?

They are meeting chairs and ladders, food, water and fire, dogs and flowers, sunsets and stars, work and rest, pain and pleasure, lies, smiles, blows and caresses, love, courage, hate, and fear, all for the first time.

They do not know what anything is for when they come to us, or why we do the things we do. They take everything literally. They take us literally. How hideous we must often seem to children who take us literally. And how silly and stupid and unfair! Yet we take it for granted that children will admire and respect us.

It is all so strange to them and confusing and difficult.

Suppose you were suddenly transplanted into an entirely new world.



a world of puzzling symbols and customs to which you held no key—

Suppose you were physically at a frightful disadvantage, being so small that legs walked by you in tall, clumsy pillars, and you saw everything from the underside, with no understanding of what was happening on top—

And suppose that your mind saw things from the underside, too, and could not guess what it was all about—

How often the back of your neck would ache! And how often all your tiny being would be filled with weariness and loneliness and discouragement—

That is the way life seems to a child. Try to remember that the next time you grow impatient.
